Issues Directives

Farm Chief Aims To Nip Scandals Of Estes Nature

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman testified today he has taken adequate steps to guard against any further scandals of the Billie Sol Estes type in his agency.

Under questioning before the Senate Investigations subcommittee, Freeman said he has issued directives designed to "make clear to the whole system that irregularities would be dealt with sharply."

Freeman contended new directives plus basic policy statements have tightened procedures to the point that the Washington headquarters must be notified "the minute irregularities are discovered" by state or county Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation committees.

Chairman John L. McClellan, D-Ark., demanded documents to back up Freeman's claim. The secretary promised to provide copies of his directives.

McClellan assured Freeman he was not trying to be "unduly critical, but I am sure you desire to do everything possible to take remedial steps the minute they discover anything wrong."

The fact is, McClellan said, experience shows that when irregularities did occur "those facts didn't come to you as quickly as possible."

"That's true . . . that's correct," the secretary responded.

Freeman had fairly smooth sailing Thursday as he read with few interruptions a 50-page statement declaring he had cleaned up fast what mess he said he found within the department. He blamed the Eisenhower administration for much of it.

Members of the Senate Investigations subcommittee said the situation would be different today, with Freeman subject to crossfire quizzing on the roles played by department officials — Undersecretary Charles S. Murphy among them — in ruling on Estes' big money manipulations under farm aid programs.

The subcommittee headed by Sen. John L. McClellan, D-Ark., is investigating how Estes, a Pecos, Tex., promoter, amassed a multimillion dollar fortune through cotton acreage allotment and grain storage deals, and how the Estes financial empire collapsed in scandals. The subcommittee seeks to determine whether political influence deals, possibly involving persons high on the Washington scene, were involved.

Freeman told the subcommittee, "No official or employe now in the employ of the department is known or can reasonably be believed to have improperly accepted gifts or other favors from Estes; Estes received no special benefits as a result of favored treatment.

Prosecutor Asks Club Padlocking

Prosecutor G. William Brokaw filed a petition Thursday afternoon in Common Pleas Court at Lisbon, seeking to have the Veterans Social Club on Pennsylvania Ave. designated as a "common public nuisance" and padlocked for at least a year.

The prosecutor's petition is scheduled tentatively for a hearing Friday, July 20, before Judge Joel H. Sharp.

THE PROSECUTOR'S action is the outgrowth of a letter sent him in mid-June by Municipal Judge Samuel M. Chertoff after he fined a waitress in the latest in a long series of alleged violations at the East End Club.

Citing a list of cuttings, shootings and other incidents inside the club or in the immediate vicinity within the last few years, Judge Chertoff asked the prosecutor to take the Common Pleas Court action under state law.

At the same time, the judge advised the State Liquor Control Board that he would like to be advised of the date the board will hear the citation against the club, in order that the judge may appear as a witness.

He explained the board normally will issue a citation against the club as an outgrowth of the conviction in the city court.

In a case June 15, the judge imposed a fine of $50 and costs—the maximum allowed by law — on Miss Geraldine Olivia Christian, 1224½ Erie St., a waitress accused of sales to non-members.

—:—

THE PROSECUTOR'S petition alleges that the club is a place where "intoxicating liquor and beer have been sold in violation of law," constituting a common nuisance.

The petition names Samuel Johnson, 1047 Pennsylvania Ave., as the owner or operator of the club, listing its address as 1044 Pennsylvania Ave.

It refers to Johnson as "the owner and responsible for keeping a place of public resort" where the "peace, comfort and dignity" of the area are disturbed by the club's operation, constituting a public nuisance.

It seeks to have the court rule the club a public nuisance and close the building against use for any purpose for a period of a year.

At the time of the hearing in mid-June, Judge Chertoff warned Johnson that he would seek to have the club padlocked and would urge the Liquor Control Board to revoke the club's permit. The hearing resulted from an investigation made May 18 by three state enforcement agents.

Saturday Session May Be Needed

Congress Drives To Clean Up Fiscal Year-End Items

WASHINGTON (AP)—Congress tries to clean up a number of fiscal year-end items today after voting to raise the national debt ceiling and providing funds to run the government next month.

Leaders said they hoped all necessary business for fiscal 1962, which ends Saturday at midnight, could be finished by late today. But a Saturday session may be needed, they said.

The jam occurs each June but this year's has involved more legislation than usual.

Two of the major items were cleared for President Kennedy Thursday.

The Senate sent to him a bill raising the debt limit to a record high of $308 billion for most of fiscal 1963 after beating back Republican efforts to trim it to $306 billion.

Both branches rushed through an emergency resolution permitting all government agencies to continue spending generally at current rates through July. This was necessary because not a single regular money bill for the new year has been passed by both branches and cleared through conference.

This almost unprecedented situation has resulted from a deadlock on protocol between the two appropriations committees — such things as whether a senator or House member shall preside at conferences.

Also sent to the President was a bill extending for another year the suspension of duties on scrap metal imports.

The President, meanwhile, signed into law a bill passed Wednesday by Congress to extend a series of Korean War taxes but to eliminate taxes on train and bus tickets and slice those on air fares to 5 per cent. The taxes which continue and bring in about $4.2 billion a year would have expired at the end of the fiscal year had legislation not been completed.

Israel Holds Red Spy In Pen Hospital

Sifts U.S. Request For His Return To Serve Life Term

BULLETIN

JERUSALEM, Israeli Sector (AP) — Quick expulsion that could lodge him back in U. S. hands seemed in prospect today for Dr. Robert A. Soblen, bail-jumping fugitive from life imprisonment in the United States as a Soviet spy.

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP)—Fugitive Soviet spy Dr. Robert A. Soblen was under medical supervision in a prison hospital today while Israeli authorities studied a U.S. request for his return to New York to begin serving a life term.

The ailing, 62-year-old Soblen, seized here less than 60 hours after he jumped $100,000 bail in New York, was taken to the hospital in Ramleh Prison when he complained he did not feel well. A doctor testified at his trial last June that Soblen was incurably ill with leukemia — cancer of the blood — and then had 12 months to live.

A spokesman for Israel's justice ministry indicated his government would be sympathetic toward Washington's demand for Soblen's return. He said Israel does not want to become a refuge for persons convicted abroad.

The United States and Israel do not have an extradition treaty, but informants here said Israel could hand Soblen over anyhow. They reasoned that Soblen was convicted of a political crime, rather than a common criminal offense, and that such crimes as espionage are not within normal extradition treaty terms.

Soblen, former supervising psychiatrist at Rockland State Hospital in Orangeburg, N.Y., had been scheduled to show up in New York federal court Thursday to begin the life sentence for 20 years of spying. The U.S. Supreme Court refused last Monday to review the case, and Soblen then fled the country.

PRIOR TO DEPARTURE. President and Mrs. Kennedy left for a three-day goodwill trip to Mexico this morning, which is expected to feature both political talks and lavish ceremonial functions in the Mexican capital. Prior to departure, Secretary of State Dean Rusk called at the White House to report to the Chief Executive on his 10-day European tour. The Kennedys and Rusk are shown chatting on the White House lawn. (UPI Telephoto)

U.S. Indicts Head Of Firm In Funds Case

Misappropriation Of $1.9 Million Is Cited In Indictment

NEW YORK (AP)—A federal grand jury has indicted Edward M. Gilbert, 39, on charges of misappropriating $1,953,000.

The 15-count indictment also accuses him of using the mails and wires for fraudulent purposes while he was president of the E.L. Bruce Co., the nation's largest hardwood flooring manufacturer.

The top penalty upon conviction on all counts is prescribed by law as 74 years in prison and fines totaling $82,000.

Gilbert is in Brazil, which has no extradition treaty with the United States.

Asst. U.S. Atty. Peter M. Morrison obtained a bench warrant for Gilbert's arrest from U.S. Dist. Judge Thomas F. Murphy a short time after the indictment was handed up Thursday.

U.S. Atty. Robert M. Morgenthau said Gilbert is the sole defendant in the case which led to the indictment.

The indictment grew from an investigation initiated by the Securities and Exchange Commission.

The investigation, which is continuing, was started almost immediately after Gilbert resigned as president of the Bruce firm on June 12 and admitted to its stockholders that he had withdrawn the $1,953,000 from the company without authorization. He flew to Rio de Janeiro a few hours later.

Union To Pick 2 Groups For Contract Talk

Looking ahead to the expiration of its present two-year contract with dinnerware manufacturers Dec. 1, the International Brotherhood of Operative Potters said today a wage policy committee and a conference committee will be elected during August.

The current contract was signed Dec. 1, 1960, at Cleveland, granting a package estimated at over 8 cents an hour to 4,900 employes of nine plants in Ohio, West Virginia and Pennsylvania. It contained a provision for a 3-cent hourly boost that took effect Dec. 1, 1961.

Six days before signing the present contract with dinnerware producers, the IBOP reached agreement on a similar two-year pact with six chinaware firms.

The dinnerware firms' negotiations were handled by the U. S. Potters Association. The pact covers these plants in the East Liverpool area: Homer Laughlin China Co., Edwin M. Knowles China Co., Taylor, Smith & Taylor Co., Harker Pottery Co., and Hall China Co. It also covers workers at Salem China Co., Royal China Co. and French - Saxon China Co., both of Sebring, and Canonsburg Pottery Co. of Canonsburg, Pa.

The chinaware pact covers Sterling China Co. and Wellsville China Co., both at Wellsville, Walker China Co. of Bedford, Buffalo China Co. of Buffalo, N. Y., Mayer China Co. of Beaver Falls and Jackson China Co. of Falls Creek, Pa.

In Mexico City

President Given Great Welcome

MEXICO CITY (AP)—President Kennedy received a massive welcome today as he arrived in this festive capital and called on Mexico and the United States to carry on common revolutionary traditions by waging a new battle for economic and social progress.

Hundreds of thousands of Mexicans massed at the airport and along the motorcade route as the U.S. chief executive and his wife landed for a three-day visit south of the border.

The main streets were gay with paper Mexican and U.S. flags—hastily repaired after a night downpour.

Welcomed by President Adolfo Lopez Mateos, Kennedy delivered a brief airport speech keyed to the burgeoning cold war over Latin America that is posed by Marxist Fidel Castro of Cuba.

Mexico and the United States, he said in his speech as prepared for delivery "are both children of revolution" who share a more than 2,000 miles of peaceful border.

Both the Mexican and the American revolutions, he said, had a common "passion for the expansion of social justice, economic opportunity, national independence and personal freedom."

The struggle today, he said, is to complete the work of revolutionary ancestors, "to carry forward a hemisphere-wide Alliance of Progress to win a better and more abundant life for the people of the Americas."

This task is as vast and heroic, he declared, as that undertaken by "Washington and Hidalgo, by Juarez and Lincoln."

He referred to Miguel Hidalgo, the Mexican revolutionist who died in 1811, and Benito Pablo Juarez, the Mexican hero president of the last century.

The task, he said, required contributions by industrialized countries to nations seeking development, and basic social reforms to share the fruits of progress with all.

The new revolution, Kennedy said, is "not a revolution of force or fear, not the impositions of new tyrannies or new bloodshed" but a peaceful revolution to show democratic government's capacity to attain social justice and economic progress.

The President's speech was a

Kennedy Gets Rusk Data On Europe Trip

President Pleased On Hearing Results Of NATO Mission

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of State Dean Rusk reported to President Kennedy today on his 10-day visit to five European capitals and said he found the President very pleased with the results of the trip.

Rusk is understood to have informed Kennedy that his mission succeeded in clearing up some Allied misunderstandings although serious difficulties and divisions continue within the ranks of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Rusk returned Thursday night and went to the White House early this morning.

After the White House talk he flew with Kennedy by helicopter to Andrews Air Force Base for the takeoff of the President and Mrs. Kennedy on their weekend trip to Mexico.

The two officials were still in brisk conversation as they made their way from the White House door to the helicopter on the lawn, and the flight itself gave them another 10 minutes before the goodby handshake at planeside.

Gives Him Tariff Cut Authority

Would Keep Dollar Strong, Weld Close Tie In West Europe

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy and his legislative leaders have scored a House victory with passage of the trade expansion bill. Now they're mapping Senate strategy to hold the ground gained.

The far-reaching bill, dynamo of Kennedy's drive to keep the dollar strong and weld a close economic partnership with Western Europe, was passed late Thursday by the House 298 to 125.

The hard-pressed Democratic leaders had won a preliminary victory on a 253-171 tally rejecting a Republican-offered substitute which had been calculated to have maximum appeal.

There was a substantial bipartisan element in both votes, since trade legislation divides Congress on economic as well as party lines.

If the Senate agrees to it, the bill will replace the present trade law, expiring Saturday midnight.

And, for the first time in the 28-year history of reciprocal trade legislation, there would be provision for keeping tariff cuts in effect even when individual businesses and their employes are hurt by imports. Loans, tax concessions and technical aid would be available to the firms hurt; adjustment payments during retraining to the workers.

The President would have authority to cut tariffs as much as 50 per cent. In dealings with the European Common Market on goods where the market countries and the United States provide the bulk of world exports, the duties could be cut to zero. They could be eliminated also in other special cases, such as non-competitive tropical products.

Kennedy, who had put the bill at the top of his legislative priority list, expressed gratification at the House action. He said it "reflects the national character of his legislation as well as its importance."

The bill is open to amendment in the Senate and several senators are expected to offer provisions to lessen injury to domestic industries. Observers predicted, however, that the bill will emerge much to the President's liking.

It stops first at the Senate Finance Committee. One member, Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy, D-Minn., predicted gentle treatment, but the chairman, Sen. Harry F. Byrd, D-Va., said he is reserving judgment on the measure.

May Have To Undergo Surgery

Churchill Flashes V-Sign In London Despite Injury

LONDON (AP) — Sir Winston Churchill returned to London by jet-powered flying ambulance today and flashed his fighting V-for-victory sign despite his broken thigh and its threat of major surgery.

The old battler, wearing green pajamas, smiled bravely as his stretcher was lowered from the Royal Air Force Comet that brought him home from his short-lived vacation on the Riviera.

A room was ready for him at the Middlesex Hospital near London's West End. There authorities said he may have to undergo an operation for his injury.

His left leg in a plaster cast after a fall in his Monte Carlo holiday hotel room Thursday, Britain's 87-year-old wartime leader looked pale but as undefeated as ever.

Lady Churchill was the first to move toward the plane. She was accompanied by Lord Moran, Churchill's old friend and doctor; and Randolph Churchill, Sir Winston's only son.

Churchill was reported to have had a restful night at Princess Grace hospital in Monte Carlo.

An ambulance brought Churchill from the hospital to Nice, a few minutes from Monte Carlo, and drove directly onto the airfield.

Churchill's secretary, Anthony Montague Browne, said the doughty old warrior had enjoyed a good breakfast and was in high spirits.

Churchill appeared in such a mood when he was carried out of the hospital and put aboard the ambulance.

He gazed around at a horde of photographers and looked up at open hospital windows from which doctors and nurses were peering.

After blinking once or twice in the bright morning sunshine, Sir Winston flashed a wide grin. He kept his hands beneath his blankets, however, in spite of appeals from the photographers for his famous "V for victory" gesture.

Thousands are expected to line city streets for the parade of fire apparatus, marching groups and bands, with fair weather assured for the colorful event.

Prizes totaling $410 will be awarded top units, firemen reported.

The units will form on Broadway, move on 3rd St. to Main St., and down Main St. through the city's business district.

Wellsville Police reminded today that parking will be banned along the route of the parade.

In addition, there is to be no parking in effect from 6 to midnight between 12th and 15th Sts. on Commerce St., police reported. The units will swing right on Commerce St. near the end of the parade route. Fire trucks and other vehicles will be parked at the lot of the Sterling China Co. A carnival at Central Park is also part of the celebration.

The judge's stand will be at 13th St. and Main St. Named as another judge for bands is Homer Lewis, former fireman. Other judges were named earlier.

Kennedy Gets Rusk Data On Europe Trip

President Pleased On Hearing Results Of NATO Mission

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of State Dean Rusk reported to President Kennedy today on his 10-day visit to five European capitals and said he found the President very pleased with the results of the trip.

Rusk is understood to have informed Kennedy that his mission succeeded in clearing up some Allied misunderstandings although serious difficulties and divisions continue within the ranks of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Rusk returned Thursday night and went to the White House early this morning.

After the White House talk he flew with Kennedy by helicopter to Andrews Air Force Base for the takeoff of the President and Mrs. Kennedy on their weekend trip to Mexico.

The two officials were still in brisk conversation as they made their way from the White House door to the helicopter on the lawn, and the flight itself gave them another 10 minutes before the goodby handshake at planeside.

Saturday Session May Be Needed

Congress Drives To Clean Up Fiscal Year-End Items

WASHINGTON (AP)—Congress tries to clean up a number of fiscal year-end items today after voting to raise the national debt ceiling and providing funds to run the government next month.

Leaders said they hoped all necessary business for fiscal 1962, which ends Saturday at midnight, could be finished by late today. But a Saturday session may be needed, they said.

The jam occurs each June but this year's has involved more legislation than usual.

Two of the major items were cleared for President Kennedy Thursday.

The Senate sent to him a bill raising the debt limit to a record high of $308 billion for most of fiscal 1963 after beating back Republican efforts to trim it to $306 billion.

Both branches rushed through an emergency resolution permitting all government agencies to continue spending generally at current rates through July. This was necessary because not a single regular money bill for the new year has been passed by both branches and cleared through conference.

This almost unprecedented situation has resulted from a deadlock on protocol between the two appropriations committees — such things as whether a senator or House member shall preside at conferences.

Also sent to the President was a bill extending for another year the suspension of duties on scrap metal imports.

The President, meanwhile, signed into law a bill passed Wednesday by Congress to extend a series of Korean War taxes but to eliminate taxes on train and bus tickets and slice those on air fares to 5 per cent. The taxes which continue and bring in about $4.2 billion a year would have expired at the end of the fiscal year had legislation not been completed.

Family Weekly Change Set

An abridged summer publishing schedule has been instituted this year by Family Weekly magazine.

The July 1 and July 8 issues will be combined in a single issue dated July 8, 1962. Thereafter through July, August and September, the magazine will be published and distributed with The Review every other Saturday.

During the 1962 bi-weekly summer publishing schedule, Family Weekly will appear in The Review in the issues of July 7, July 21, Aug. 4, Aug. 18, Sept. 1, Sept. 15 and Sept. 29.

You will not receive Family Weekly with your Review Saturday. Watch for the next issue July 7.

Regular weekly publication will be resumed in October.

May Have To Undergo Surgery

Churchill Flashes V-Sign In London Despite Injury

LONDON (AP) — Sir Winston Churchill returned to London by jet-powered flying ambulance today and flashed his fighting V-for-victory sign despite his broken thigh and its threat of major surgery.

The old battler, wearing green pajamas, smiled bravely as his stretcher was lowered from the Royal Air Force Comet that brought him home from his short-lived vacation on the Riviera.

A room was ready for him at the Middlesex Hospital near London's West End. There authorities said he may have to undergo an operation for his injury.

His left leg in a plaster cast after a fall in his Monte Carlo holiday hotel room Thursday, Britain's 87-year-old wartime leader looked pale but as undefeated as ever.

Lady Churchill was the first to move toward the plane. She was accompanied by Lord Moran, Churchill's old friend and doctor; and Randolph Churchill, Sir Winston's only son.

Churchill was reported to have had a restful night at Princess Grace hospital in Monte Carlo.

An ambulance brought Churchill from the hospital to Nice, a few minutes from Monte Carlo, and drove directly onto the airfield.

Churchill's secretary, Anthony Montague Browne, said the doughty old warrior had enjoyed a good breakfast and was in high spirits.

Churchill appeared in such a mood when he was carried out of the hospital and put aboard the ambulance.

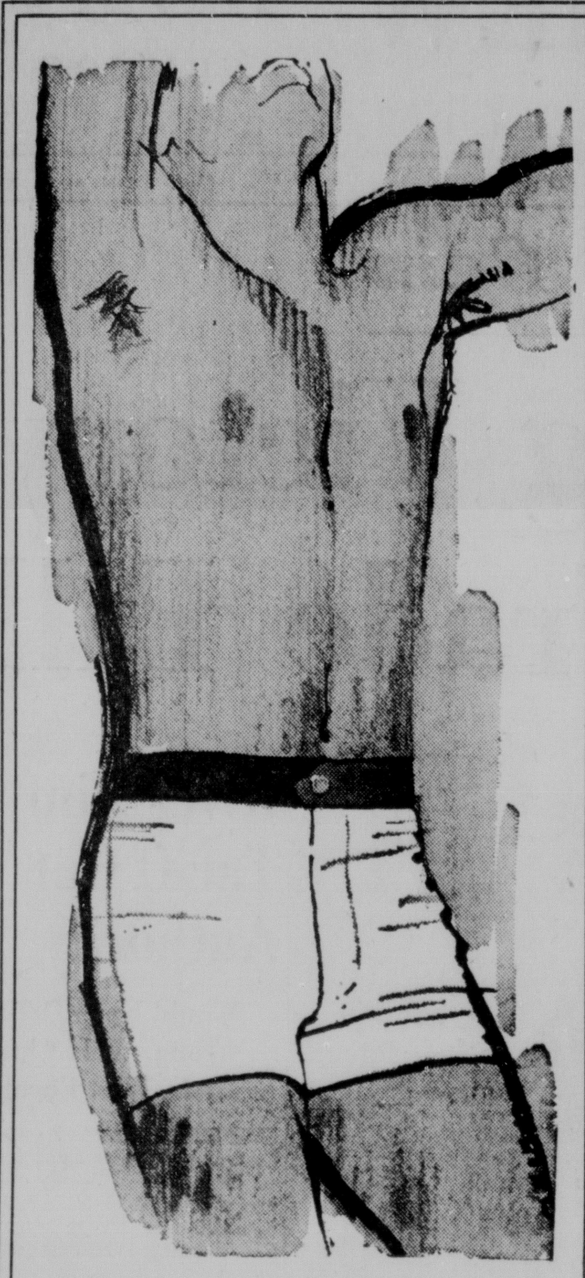

He gazed around at a horde of photographers and looked up at open hospital windows from which doctors and nurses were peering.

After blinking once or twice in the bright morning sunshine, Sir Winston flashed a wide grin. He kept his hands beneath his blankets, however, in spite of appeals from the photographers for his famous "V for victory" gesture.

Ex-Disc Jockey Awarded $3.5 Million In Libel Suit

NEW YORK (AP) — Former disc jockey John Henry Faulk was awarded $3.5 million libel damages Thursday night on his charge that linking him to a Communist conspiracy destroyed his broadcasting career.

After deliberating four hours after an 11-week trial the jury, by an 11 to 1 vote, found for Faulk against the publication Aware, Inc.; Vincent W. Hartnett, one of its directors; and the late Laurence A. Johnson, operator of a chain of supermarkets in Syracuse, N.Y.

Johnson, excused from attending the trial because of ill health, died Wednesday in a Bronx motel.

The panel of eight men and four women awarded Faulk a total of $1 million compensatory damages divided among all three defendants and punitive damages of $1.25 million each from Aware and Hartnett. The judge had ruled that no punitive damages could be collected from Johnson's estate.

Faulk's counsel had asked an award of $4 million.

Defense attorneys said they definitely will appeal.

The verdict was handed down on the Faulks' 14th wedding anniversary, prompting Mrs. Faulk to say: "It's the nicest present I could have got."

During the trial, Faulk was described as the third or fourth leading disc jockey in the New York area. He conducted programs on radio and television for the Columbia Broadcasting System.

Aware was incorporated in 1953 with the avowed aim of "combatting the communist conspiracy in entertainment communications."

Faulk charged that a bulletin of Aware, published Feb. 10, 1956, falsely accused him of pro-Communist sympathies. He said Hartnett prepared the material and Johnson was instrumental in distributing it to broadcasting and advertising executives.

Testifying for Faulk, many persons in the entertainment world detailed a pattern of blacklisting in the industry during the 1950's.

Until Thursday the jury was unaware of the death of Johnson, 73, whose pajama-clad body was found in bed. Positive identification was made by his son-in-law, Donald J. Giancola of Syracuse. A medical examiner said the body bore no marks of violence. Johnson had a history of a heart ailment.

Ohio Retirement Community For Clergy Nears Reality

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The dream of Ohio Presbyterian churchmen for a retirement community in Southern Ohio is moving closer to reality.

Ohio Church Residences, Inc., of Columbus signed final papers Thursday with the Federal Housing Administration for two loans totaling $500,000 to be used for improvements and construction at Bristol Village in Waverly.

The village is the state's first large scale community plan for retirees. Located amid wooded and rolling foothills of the Alleghenies, the 323 frame and asbestos and shingle homes are owned and managed by Ohio Church Residences. The corporation is a non-profit organization formed by four Presbyterian churches — Boulevard Presbyterian of Columbus, First Presbyterian of Chillicothe, Second Presbyterian of Portsmouth and First Presbyterian of Waverly.

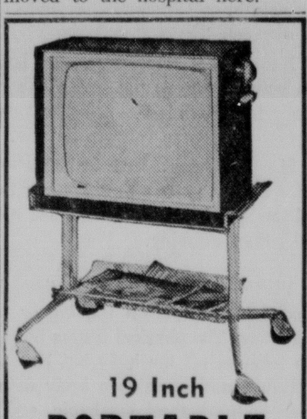

The half-million dollars from the federal government will go for improvements and a $250,000 activities building, which includes a health clinic and craft area.

The homes in the non-denominational community may be purchased by anyone 62 years of age older. An admission committee reviews applications on the basis of age, church membership, health factors, background and finances.

Ex-Disc Jockey Awarded $3.5 Million In Libel Suit

NEW YORK (AP) — Former disc jockey John Henry Faulk was awarded $3.5 million libel damages Thursday night on his charge that linking him to a Communist conspiracy destroyed his broadcasting career.

After deliberating four hours after an 11-week trial the jury, by an 11 to 1 vote, found for Faulk against the publication Aware, Inc.; Vincent W. Hartnett, one of its directors; and the late Laurence A. Johnson, operator of a chain of supermarkets in Syracuse, N.Y.

Johnson, excused from attending the trial because of ill health, died Wednesday in a Bronx motel.

The panel of eight men and four women awarded Faulk a total of $1 million compensatory damages divided among all three defendants and punitive damages of $1.25 million each from Aware and Hartnett. The judge had ruled that no punitive damages could be collected from Johnson's estate.

Faulk's counsel had asked an award of $4 million.

Defense attorneys said they definitely will appeal.

The verdict was handed down on the Faulks' 14th wedding anniversary, prompting Mrs. Faulk to say: "It's the nicest present I could have got."

During the trial, Faulk was described as the third or fourth leading disc jockey in the New York area. He conducted programs on radio and television for the Columbia Broadcasting System.

Aware was incorporated in 1953 with the avowed aim of "combatting the communist conspiracy in entertainment communications."

Faulk charged that a bulletin of Aware, published Feb. 10, 1956, falsely accused him of pro-Communist sympathies. He said Hartnett prepared the material and Johnson was instrumental in distributing it to broadcasting and advertising executives.

Testifying for Faulk, many persons in the entertainment world detailed a pattern of blacklisting in the industry during the 1950's.

Until Thursday the jury was unaware of the death of Johnson, 73, whose pajama-clad body was found in bed. Positive identification was made by his son-in-law, Donald J. Giancola of Syracuse. A medical examiner said the body bore no marks of violence. Johnson had a history of a heart ailment.

Ohio Retirement Community For Clergy Nears Reality

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The dream of Ohio Presbyterian churchmen for a retirement community in Southern Ohio is moving closer to reality.

Ohio Church Residences, Inc., of Columbus signed final papers Thursday with the Federal Housing Administration for two loans totaling $500,000 to be used for improvements and construction at Bristol Village in Waverly.

The village is the state's first large scale community plan for retirees. Located amid wooded and rolling foothills of the Alleghenies, the 323 frame and asbestos and shingle homes are owned and managed by Ohio Church Residences. The corporation is a non-profit organization formed by four Presbyterian churches — Boulevard Presbyterian of Columbus, First Presbyterian of Chillicothe, Second Presbyterian of Portsmouth and First Presbyterian of Waverly.

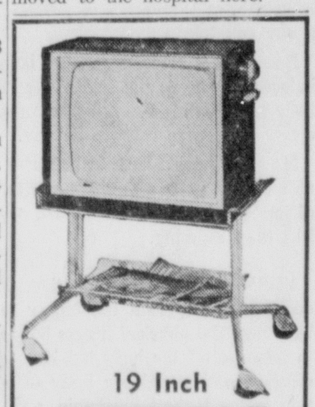

The half-million dollars from the federal government will go for improvements and a $250,000 activities building, which includes a health clinic and craft area.

The homes in the non-denominational community may be purchased by anyone 62 years of age older. An admission committee reviews applications on the basis of age, church membership, health factors, background and finances.

Exercise For Fatheads?

What this country needs is a 15-minute-a-day mental fitness program!

President Kennedy's special consultant on physical fitness, Charles B. (Bud) Wilkinson, Oklahoma University athletic director, recently said even 15 minutes of physical exercise a day could help amazingly.

Paradoxical as it seems, the human brain in only a fraction the size of the rest of the body but for fullest development requires exercise in reverse ratio to its size.

Many persons spend 15 hours — not minutes but hours — a day working their brains at top speed and the results are considerably less than amazing.

VERY OFTEN it seems that the harder one works his brain the bigger fathead he becomes. The physical fitness boys know how to take fat off the body but how to take fat off the head remains a hotly debated question in the highest academic and scientific circles.

Mr. Wilkinson's advice on physical exercise was aimed specifically at American diplomats going abroad (overseas, that is) so they would present a trimmer image of the United States.

Diplomats have taken such a beating from smart alecks down through history that it probably would not be fair to inquire as to what is being done to pare excess baggage from their heads. Still, there persists a nagging curiosity as to whether this emphasis on exercise is starting at the wrong end.

If any diplomat of the United States in a foreign country should suspect that his native hosts might be looking askance at either his physical or mental image, he could honestly explain, "You should see some of the people I left at home."

AT THE MOMENT it appears doubtful if there ever will be a program for the development of brains as simple as a couple of dozen knee bends or running up and down the stairs for 15 minutes a day. And if it comes to that, conformity in mental development could be a sad thing. Like that old saying, "I'm glad everybody isn't in love with my wife."

Thus it is certain that for some time to come there will be those who study Shakespeare to exercise their heads and there will be those who study tables of atomic weights. And of course there will be some who study both.

And to anyone who doesn't care for either Shakespeare or tables of atomic weights, those who do like them will always be fatheads and vice versa.

Good News On Conservation

Unlike the drain on the United States' gold, our soil is washing out to sea at a much slower rate than a quarter century ago, according to current estimates.

A Department of Agriculture soil conservation expert reports the loss of soil through erosion is probably two-thirds of what it was in 1935. That was the year Congress passed the Soil Conservation Act and a program to save the soil was started on a national scale.

THE DEPARTMENT spokesman, however, warned that despite great progress in conserving farm land there is much left to be done.

It is estimated that one-half of the privately owned farm land in the United States is suited to regular cultivation.

More than 100 million acres are expected by the department to shift to new uses by 1975 and these acres will need new conservation practices.

The main conservation problem on 161 million acres is erosion. On another 60 million acres, the problem is excess water, unfavorable soil on 36 million and adverse climate on 14 million.

The department added that altogether 637 million acres are suitable for regular cultivation and that the nation's land resources are considered adequate for foreseeable future needs.

IN ADDITION to the Agriculture Department's report on the slowdown of soil erosion, there was other good news for conservation-minded citizens this week. There were nearly 5,000 fewer forest fires in 1961 than in 1960.

Each time there is a forest fire, an average of 32 acres of timbers are lost — enough to build 75 homes. But the loss can't be measured in board feet alone. Recreation, wildlife and watershed damage also enter the picture.

A responsible public is credited with contributing to last year's improved record. A continuing responsible public can better the records in future years.

Sea Exploration Advances, Too

While most of our attention recently has been in outer space, there have been other scientific developments down here on earth that some day may be more important to civilization than exploration of the atmosphere.

Plans for a deep-sea vehicle that looks like a giant shellfish with a single claw is announced by Westinghouse Electric Corp. The submersible will be self-propelled, carry a three-man crew and be capable of diving to 12,000 feet below the surface of the ocean.

The first model is expected to be completed in 18 months. It is the invention of Capt. Jacques-Yves Cousteau, French pioneer in undersea research and developer of the aqua lung.

The company will use the craft, christened "Deepstar," to test "oceanographis instrumentation" and for other purposes. It also will be available to organizations which may want to lease it for deep-sea research of various kinds.

Later the company plans to build similar vehicles for sale. Price, before installation of whatever instruments the purchaser needs, is estimated at $500,000. It will be carried to location on the deck of a mother ship.

So while we have astronauts to explore the skies we soon may have aquanauts to explore the seas.

Man Of Mystery

By Fred B. Stauffer

What are Howard Hughes' specific aims in the aviation industry? This question has come into sharp focus with twin regulatory decisions giving the multi-millionaire industrialist the right to own both Northeast Airlines and Trans World Airlines.

Only partial, and partly guesswork, answers can be given to the aviation question. Answers to the personality question must be based almost solely on the known business record as modified and illuminated by second-hand glimpses of a nearly legendary figure.

The Civil Aeronautics Board and Securities and Exchange Commission decisions permitted Mr. Hughes to add 56 per cent stock control of Northeast to the 78 per cent of TWA stock held by Hughes Tool Co., solely owned by Mr. Hughes.

But will there be a merger of the two air lines? Mr. Hughes has indicated merger is an ultimate objective, but there are numerous large stumbling blocks, apart from CAB approval.

Perhaps the most difficult obstacle to such a move is the fact that Mr. Hughes' voting control of the TWA stock is lodged in a three-man, 10-year trusteeship created in 1960.

Hughes Tool is seeking in the courts to recover actual voting control of TWA and put Mr. Hughes back in the saddle he occupied from 1939 to 1960. At the same time TWA seeks a court order to have Hughes Tool divest itself of the airline stock.

These suits involve damage claims and counter claims running into hundreds of millions of dollars, but the basic issue clearly is that of who will run TWA.

If it's Mr. Hughes, then a move to unite the 50,000-mile international carrier with 3,200-mile Northeast can be expected. But if Hughes should fail in the TWA effort, the non-Hughes management of TWA might well spurn the New England carrier as a partner, as it did in 1960.

Also vital to the merger question is the problem of Northeast's routes from New England to Florida, now up for renewal in an undecided case. Without such routes it might be deemed undesirable to add Northeast to TWA's domestic network.

The key figure in this welter of high finance before and since TWA, is Howard Robard Hughes Jr., now 56. He inherited, before he was 21, a large interest in Hughes Tool founded by his father. Hughes Tool's primary concern was, and still is, the making of oil-drilling equipment, but when the younger Hughes took over in 1924 the size of the company was many millions away from the present estimated total assets of $293 million.

From the operations of this company, solely - owned, Mr. Hughes has been able to draw many millions yearly to finance other ventures in such diverse areas as motion pictures, aircraft manufacture, and even brewing. Success followed success in most of the other ventures and his personal fortune has grown to an estimated $400 million more.

For a time Mr. Hughes flashed across the movie world with a series of spectacular and expensive films. He also retained an early interest in active aviation and achieved a record-shattering round-the-world flight in 1939.

In those days he was much in the public eye, although direct press contacts appear to have been limited. In later years as he retired more and more from public view, there arose a "man-of-mystery" sort of legend which Mr. Hughes has done little to dispel out of his own mouth or the words of associates.

Odd Facts

There is no difference in sweetness between pure cane sugar and pure beet sugar. Completely refined sugar made from sugar cane and completely refined sugar made from sugar beets are identical in chemical composition. Only in the unrefined product is there any difference.

The United States, with more than half of the world's 141.7 million telephones within its borders, has about 16 times more phones than the Soviet Union. There are more than 40 telephones for every 100 Americans, as compared with about two for every 100 Russians.

Best church attendance record of any section of the United States is held by the New England states, where more than one out of every two adults (about 52 per cent) attend church on any given Sunday.

According to American Airlines surveys, about 50 per cent of the U. S. population has never flown in an airplane.

In The Lions' Den

The Steel Investigation Goes On

By Victor Riesel

It was only the other day that President Kennedy told a small group of businessmen he was surprised to learn that a New York Federal Grand Jury still is investigating most of the steel industry. He turned to a steel executive. The President said he had not realized things had gone that far. Certainly, he said he would talk to his brother, the attorney general.

Victor Riesel

Since then things have gone further. The grand jury over in Foley Square has done what comes naturally to grand juries—it has, as most observers now know, subpoenaed expense account data and telephone numbers of "all" steel executives and their secretaries involved in handling any phase of price making.

These subpoenas were trundled out of the federal building by special agents on June 8.

NOW, MARK THIS down as a prediction. When those records are examined by Justice Department specialists on Aug. 15, the telephone data and expense records and travel tabs will reveal that many executives of the nation's big 11 steel companies met frequently in hotel rooms in the past six months.

Also that they gathered in three cities — New York, Washington and Pittsburgh. Also that they talked quite frequently on the intercity phones.

But — this will prove only that they sat and talked together. They had reason. They were then negotiating as a unit with Dave McDonald's United Steelworkers Union.

They were — as a unit — in contact with the President of the United States. They spoke almost daily — one or another — with Labor Secretary Arthur Goldberg. They were working on a deadline as requested by the President, to beat the June 30 contract expiration date by several months.

To accomplish this they met secretly, frequently. They gathered in Pittsburgh's Penn Sheraton Hotel, Carlton House, and Hilton.

In New York there were talks at the Waldorf and the Park Lane Hotel. In Washington, at the Carlton Hotel.

They had to gather. They were working through a four-man committee.

IN THAT GROUP which met daily with Dave McDonald and the erudite successor to Arthur Goldberg, Dave Feller, were Conrad (Coop) Cooper, vice president, U. S. Steel; R. Heath Larry, vice president, U. S. Steel; H. C. (Lefty) Lumb, vice president and director of law and corporate relations for Republic Steel and Russ Branscom, of Bethlehem Steel.

They dealt in cost every minute. Labor is cost. Cost is part of price like a ball bat is part of Roger Maris.

Not only did they confer among themselves, but they talked fairly regularly with their presidents and chairmen of boards. These topside executives then gathered or phoned to consult with each other to formulate replies to the White House, or to Goldberg, or to McDonald and Feller.

On the four-man team were the representatives of three most intensely investigated steel corporations. Basically U. S. Steel is being probed. Bethlehem is the firm over which the FBI agents were instructed to awaken newsmen to check on what the corporation chief said about price.

Republic is right in there, too. Since the four men talked for 11 companies as a unit, there obviously was much unified action.

THE GRAND JURY technique of examining expense accounts and calls over unlisted phones was used to obtain the indictment and conviction of electrical supply manufacturers. But the steel case is different. The electrical companies did not negotiate as a unit with the hundreds of union locals in the field. In steel there was necessity for consultation.

So it is inevitable that there will be resentment in the executive suites of the steel industry. And adding to the dissipation of any brotherly love which may have been engendered in recent weeks of co-operation is the probe of steel by the Senate subcommittee on anti-trust and monopoly.

STEEL COMPANY lawyers have been conferring for weeks with Sen. Kefauver, committee chairman. They have surrendered to him their corporations' ultra-secret cost records. Estes Kefauver has promised to keep each company's data mighty secret. It will be turned over to the comptroller general of the United States. There, for eventual use in open hearings, the data will be confidentially lumped in groups of three — the costs of the biggest three companies, the next three, etc.

But that isn't really keeping the steel people enthused. They aren't going to vote the senator the most popular man on the Hill in anticipation of his putting them on the public witness stand.

Nor will all this engender good will between the White House and the business houses — that good will the nation needs so badly now.

King Of North

Polar bears may be relentless killers, but they symbolize luck to the Eskimos.

To survive in Arctic wastes, the bears must constantly hunt for food. The never-ending search carries them many miles in a single day. When an Eskimo sees a bear, he knows that seals and fish are also near.

Trappers welcome the bear's presence, too. Valuable Arctic foxes often follow the footsteps of the giant carnivores, scavenging from kills.

The powerful, elongated bodies of polar bears have been equally at home on ice or in open sea for 10 million years. They have been clocked at 25 miles an hour on ice and have been known to swim 300 miles between floes.

Thick, oily fur supports the bears in water and enables them to swim or float for hours. So heavy are their coats that scientists hunting with drug-tipped darts have had to make a hasty retreat when the darts bounced harmlessly away.

Nature has given the bears built-in Arctic sunglasses to prevent snow blindness. A special lid protects their eyes from glare.

The Douglas Dictum

Opinion Opens A Broad Field Of Thought

Whether or not the latest Supreme Court decision on the subject of an official prayer in the public schools is soundly based, it has brought sharply to the foreground a discussion of the whole subject of government financing, directly or indirectly, of institution or activity which relates even remotely to religion.

David Lawrence

The main ruling of the court was on a narrow question — that is, whether a state can direct that a particular prayer be recited, even though the prayer is itself general and denominationally neutral. The issue was whether the state has a right to dictate to the schools any form of prayer. If it does have such discretion, then one day the prayer might be neutral, and another day some other prayer with denominational overtones might be ordered by the state board of education.

Although the Supreme Court decided only that no state could direct any official prayer, there was a concurring opinion by Justice Douglas which is bound to attract nationwide attention. What Mr. Douglas said is known as "dictum" and has no bearing on the ruling itself, even though he concurred in the result.

The big question is whether Mr. Douglas's views will be shared by other members of the court and whether a majority ever will join with him in putting into a ruling the point of view which he has just expressed.

"It is customary," wrote Justice Douglas, "in deciding a constitutional question to treat it in its narrowest form. Yet at times the setting of the question gives it a form and content which no abstract treatment could do. The point for decision is whether the government can constitutionally finance a religious exercise.

"Our system at the federal and state levels is presently honeycombed with such financing. Nevertheless, I think it is an unconstitutional undertaking whatever form it takes."

STANDING by itself, this is a very broad statement, but it is even more significant because Justice Douglas attached a footnote in which he presented an extract from a book by David Fellman entitled "The Limits of Freedom."

This particular quotation listed the many aids to religion at all levels of government, such as provision for chaplains of both houses of Congress and in the armed services, compulsory chapel at the armed service academies, and religious services in federal hospitals and prisons. It also pointed out that the president issues religious proclamations, that the Bible is used for the administration of oaths, and that federal funds were available to parochial schools during the depression in the 1930s.

It then adds: "Veterans receiving money under the 'GI' bill of 1944 could attend denominational schools, to which payents were made directly by the government.

"During World War II, federal money was contributed to denominational schools for the training of nurses. The benefits of the National School Lunch Act are available to students in private as well as public schools. The Hospital Survey and Construction Act of 1946 specifically made money available to non-public hospitals. . . .

"This list of federal aids' could easily be expanded, and of course there is a long list in each state."

This is the first time that any justice of the Supreme Court has even hinted that all forms of federal financing are unconstitutional if they go to religious institutions directly or indirectly. Such a sweeping disapproval of federal aid has never been espoused by any prominent member of Congress.

Justice Douglas even would reverse the famous case of "Everson vs. Board of Education," in which he voted with the majority in 1947. It upheld the use of taxpayers' money to pay "the bus fares of parochial school pupils as a part of a general program" under which the fares of pupils attending public and other schools were also paid. He says:

"The Everson case seems in retrospect to be out of line with the First Amendment. Its result is appealing, as it allows aid to be given to needy children. Yet by the same token, public funds could be used to satisfy other needs of children in parochial schools — lunches, books, and tuition being obvious examples."

Justice Douglas, in effect, is taking issue with President Kennedy, who, while contending that "across the board" aid to all church-related educational institutions would be unconstitutional, holds that there is no such bar to aid being given at only the college level where mathematics and other scientific subjects are taught.

Mr. Douglas would sweep out mental aid to church-related institutions, including tuition grants to war veterans.

The factor of discrimination as between citizens, of course, comes into the controversy. Persons of a particular religious faith who offer their lives in sacrifice during war do not like to be told that, when they come back from a war, they cannot be recompensed, for instance, by tuition payments which would help them get the education they were denied on account of the government's summons to military service. The subject will be debated for a long, long time to come.

Red Prince Of Laos

By Tom Lambert

VIENTIANE

One dark May night two years ago as this city was relaxing in langorous humid lassitude that is Laos' accepted way of life, a scrawny little man with a thimble of some needles and thread was smuggled into a prison blockhouse tenanted by a handful of Loatian Communists serving time for that obsession of all Communists—trying to take over the government in which they are partners.

Hustled into a cell, the little tailor deftly began measuring his Communist customers for suits, each patterned on jail guard uniforms and each cut from a bolt of cloth of the same material of which the uniforms were made.

One of the first customer was a stocky, black-haired man who accepted without ostentation the tailor's references to him as "Altesse" (Highness), meanwhile urging greater speed.

FOR THE NEXT two days and nights the tailor scissored and stitched for his customers until each was outfitted in a uniform indistinguishable from their guards'.

Then on the third night, the jailer-uniformed Communists slipped quietly from their cells—two regular jailers thoughtfully opening cell locks for them, then joining their procession — and walked quickly out of the prison behind the man called "Altesse."

He promptly led them north and east, into Communist-held territory.

"Altesse" was Prince Souphanouvong, who is now back in Laos' new "neutralist" government as deputy prime minister and chief economic planner and undoubtedly obsessed as ever with the compulsion to take over the shaky regime just formed.

Some observers in Vientiane, coldly weighing Souphanouvong's prospects against the negligible opposition he faces in the new government, believe he may succeed in one to two years.

Grinning like a cat, Souphanouvong seemed to be thinking precisely of that possibility recently on the Communist-held Plain of Jars when he and the other two Laotian princes announced they had formed a coalition government for this strategic little nation.

Dressed in a gray suit with a white shirt and silver-clasped red tie, he smiled past a thick moustache and over a wispy goatee at reporters, talking easily with them in French and English.

His smile split his broad face from one long curling sideburn to the other, giving him somewhat of the appearance of an Oriental card sharp who has just rung in a marked deck on his unknowing opponents.

There was no warmth in his smile, only a guarded gleam of satisfaction that he now has another opportunity to capture Laos for communism, which he seems to have embraced as much as 25 years ago on the docks at Le Havre, in France.

ACTUALLY not too much is known about Souphanouvong in the West. His biography is filled with the same unexplained gaps as those of many other Communist chiefs.

It's known definitely, however, that he is not the No. 1 man in the Pathet Lao Communist organization, but rather only its front man.

Exercise For Fatheads?

What this country needs is a 15-minute-a-day mental fitness program!

President Kennedy's special consultant on physical fitness, Charles B. (Bud) Wilkinson, Oklahoma University athletic director, recently said even 15 minutes of physical exercise a day could help amazingly.

Paradoxical as it seems, the human brain in only a fraction the size of the rest of the body but for fullest development requires exercise in reverse ratio to its size.

Many persons spend 15 hours — not minutes but hours — a day working their brains at top speed and the results are considerably less than amazing.

VERY OFTEN it seems that the harder one works his brain the bigger fathead he becomes. The physical fitness boys know how to take fat off the body but how to take fat off the head remains a hotly debated question in the highest academic and scientific circles.

Mr. Wilkinson's advice on physical exercise was aimed specifically at American diplomats going abroad (overseas, that is) so they would present a trimmer image of the United States.

Diplomats have taken such a beating from smart alecks down through history that it probably would not be fair to inquire as to what is being done to pare excess baggage from their heads. Still, there persists a nagging curiosity as to whether this emphasis on exercise is starting at the wrong end.

If any diplomat of the United States in a foreign country should suspect that his native hosts might be looking askance at either his physical or mental image, he could honestly explain, "You should see some of the people I left at home."

AT THE MOMENT it appears doubtful if there ever will be a program for the development of brains as simple as a couple of dozen knee bends or running up and down the stairs for 15 minutes a day. And if it comes to that, conformity in mental development could be a sad thing. Like that old saying, "I'm glad everybody isn't in love with my wife."

Thus it is certain that for some time to come there will be those who study Shakespeare to exercise their heads and there will be those who study tables of atomic weights. And of course there will be some who study both.

And to anyone who doesn't care for either Shakespeare or tables of atomic weights, those who do like them will always be fatheads and vice versa.

Good News On Conservation

Unlike the drain on the United States' gold, our soil is washing out to sea at a much slower rate than a quarter century ago, according to current estimates.

A Department of Agriculture soil conservation expert reports the loss of soil through erosion is probably two-thirds of what it was in 1935. That was the year Congress passed the Soil Conservation Act and a program to save the soil was started on a national scale.

THE DEPARTMENT spokesman, however, warned that despite great progress in conserving farm land there is much left to be done.

It is estimated that one-half of the privately owned farm land in the United States is suited to regular cultivation.

More than 100 million acres are expected by the department to shift to new uses by 1975 and these acres will need new conservation practices.

The main conservation problem on 161 million acres is erosion. On another 60 million acres, the problem is excess water, unfavorable soil on 36 million and adverse climate on 14 million.

The department added that altogether 637 million acres are suitable for regular cultivation and that the nation's land resources are considered adequate for foreseeable future needs.

IN ADDITION to the Agriculture Department's report on the slowdown of soil erosion, there was other good news for conservation-minded citizens this week. There were nearly 5,000 fewer forest fires in 1961 than in 1960.

Each time there is a forest fire, an average of 32 acres of timbers are lost — enough to build 75 homes. But the loss can't be measured in board feet alone. Recreation, wildlife and watershed damage also enter the picture.

A responsible public is credited with contributing to last year's improved record. A continuing responsible public can better the records in future years.

Sea Exploration Advances, Too

While most of our attention recently has been in outer space, there have been other scientific developments down here on earth that some day may be more important to civilization than exploration of the atmosphere.

Plans for a deep-sea vehicle that looks like a giant shellfish with a single claw is announced by Westinghouse Electric Corp. The submersible will be self-propelled, carry a three-man crew and be capable of diving to 12,000 feet below the surface of the ocean.

The first model is expected to be completed in 18 months. It is the invention of Capt. Jacques-Yves Cousteau, French pioneer in undersea research and developer of the aqua lung.

The company will use the craft, christened "Deepstar," to test "oceanographic instrumentation" and for other purposes. It also will be available to organizations which may want to lease it for deep-sea research of various kinds.

Later the company plans to build similar vehicles for sale. Price, before installation of whatever instruments the purchaser needs, is estimated at $500,000. It will be carried to location on the deck of a mother ship.

So while we have astronauts to explore the skies we soon may have aquanauts to explore the seas.

Man Of Mystery

By Fred B. Stauffer

What are Howard Hughes' specific aims in the aviation industry? This question has come into sharp focus with twin regulatory decisions giving the multi-millionaire industrialist the right to own both Northeast Airlines and Trans World Airlines.

Only partial, and partly guesswork, answers can be given to the aviation question. Answers to the personality question must be based almost solely on the known business record as modified and illuminated by second-hand glimpses of a nearly legendary figure.

The Civil Aeronautics Board and Securities and Exchange Commission decisions permitted Mr. Hughes to add 56 per cent stock control of Northeast to the 78 per cent of TWA stock held by Hughes Tool Co., solely owned by Mr. Hughes.

But will there be a merger of the two air lines? Mr. Hughes has indicated merger is an ultimate objective, but there are numerous large stumbling blocks, apart from CAB approval.

Perhaps the most difficult obstacle to such a move is the fact that Mr. Hughes' voting control of the TWA stock is lodged in a three-man, 10-year trusteeship created in 1960.

Hughes Tool is seeking in the courts to recover actual voting control of TWA and put Mr. Hughes back in the saddle he occupied from 1939 to 1960. At the same time TWA seeks a court order to have Hughes Tool divest itself of the airline stock.

These suits involve damage claims and counter claims running into hundreds of millions of dollars, but the basic issue clearly is that of who will run TWA.

If it's Mr. Hughes, then a move to unite the 50,000-mile international carrier with 3,200-mile Northeast can be expected. But if Hughes should fail in the TWA effort, the non-Hughes management of TWA might well spurn the New England carrier as a partner, as it did in 1960.

Also vital to the merger question is the problem of Northeast's routes from New England to Florida, now up for renewal in an undecided case. Without such routes it might be deemed undesirable to add Northeast to TWA's domestic network.

The key figure in this welter of high finance before and since TWA, is Howard Robard Hughes Jr., now 56. He inherited, before he was 21, a large interest in Hughes Tool founded by his father. Hughes Tool's primary concern was, and still is, the making of oil-drilling equipment, but when the younger Hughes took over in 1924 the size of the company was many millions away from the present estimated total assets of $293 million.

From the operations of this company, solely - owned, Mr. Hughes has been able to draw many millions yearly to finance other ventures in such diverse areas as motion pictures, aircraft manufacture, and even brewing. Success followed success in most of the other ventures and his personal fortune has grown to an estimated $400 million more.

For a time Mr. Hughes flashed across the movie world with a series of spectacular and expensive films. He also retained an early interest in active aviation and achieved a record-shattering round-the-world flight in 1939.

In those days he was much in the public eye, although direct press contacts appear to have been limited. In later years as he retired more and more from public view, there arose a "man-of-mystery" sort of legend which Mr. Hughes has done little to dispel out of his own mouth or the words of associates.

Odd Facts

There is no difference in sweetness between pure cane sugar and pure beet sugar. Completely refined sugar made from sugar cane and completely refined sugar made from sugar beets are identical in chemical composition. Only in the unrefined product is there any difference.

The United States, with more than half of the world's 141.7 million telephones within its borders, has about 16 times more phones than the Soviet Union. There are more than 40 telephones for every 100 Americans, as compared with about two for every 100 Russians.

Best church attendance record of any section of the United States is held by the New England states, where more than one out of every two adults (about 52 per cent) attend church on any given Sunday.

According to American Airlines surveys, about 50 per cent of the U. S. population has never flown in an airplane.

In The Lions' Den

The Steel Investigation Goes On

By Victor Riesel

It was only the other day that President Kennedy told a small group of businessmen he was surprised to learn that a New York Federal Grand Jury still is investigating most of the steel industry. He turned to a steel executive. The President said he had not realized things had gone that far. Certainly, he said he would talk to his brother, the attorney general.

Victor Riesel

Since then things have gone further. The grand jury over in Foley Square has done what comes naturally to grand juries—it has, as most observers now know, subpoenaed expense account data and telephone numbers of "all" steel executives and their secretaries involved in handling any phase of price making.

These subpoenas were trundled out of the federal building by special agents on June 8.

NOW, MARK THIS down as a prediction. When those records are examined by Justice Department specialists on Aug. 15, the telephone data and expense records and travel tabs will reveal that many executives of the nation's big 11 steel companies met frequently in hotel rooms in the past six months.

Also that they gathered in three cities — New York, Washington and Pittsburgh. Also that they talked quite frequently on the intercity phones.

But — this will prove only that they sat and talked together. They had reason. They were then negotiating as a unit with Dave McDonald's United Steelworkers Union.

They were — as a unit — in contact with the President of the United States. They spoke almost daily — one or another — with Labor Secretary Arthur Goldberg. They were working on a deadline as requested by the President, to beat the June 30 contract expiration date by several months.

To accomplish this they met secretly, frequently. They gathered in Pittsburgh's Penn Sheraton Hotel, Carlton House, and Hilton.

In New York there were talks at the Waldorf and the Park Lane Hotel. In Washington, at the Carlton Hotel.

They had to gather. They were working through a four-man committee.

IN THAT GROUP which met daily with Dave McDonald and the erudite successor to Arthur Goldberg, Dave Feller, were Conrad (Coop) Cooper, vice president, U. S. Steel; R. Heath Larry, vice president, U. S. Steel; H. C. (Lefty) Lumb, vice president and director of law and corporate relations for Republic Steel and Russ Branscom, of Bethlehem Steel.

They dealt in cost every minute. Labor is cost. Cost is part of price like a ball bat is part of Roger Maris.

Not only did they confer among themselves, but they talked fairly regularly with their presidents and chairmen of boards. These topside executives then gathered or phoned to consult with each other to formulate replies to the White House, or to Goldberg, or to McDonald and Feller.

On the four-man team were the representatives of three most intensely investigated steel corporations. Basically U. S. Steel is being probed. Bethlehem is the firm over which the FBI agents were instructed to awaken newsmen to check on what the corporation chief said about price.

Republic is right in there, too. Since the four men talked for 11 companies as a unit, there obviously was much unified action.

THE GRAND JURY technique of examining expense accounts and calls over unlisted phones was used to obtain the indictment and conviction of electrical supply manufacturers. But the steel case is different. The electrical companies did not negotiate as a unit with the hundreds of union locals in the field. In steel there was necessity for consultation.

So it is inevitable that there will be resentment in the executive suites of the steel industry. And adding to the dissipation of any brotherly love which may have been engendered in recent weeks of co-operation is the probe of steel by the Senate subcommittee on anti-trust and monopoly.

STEEL COMPANY lawyers have been conferring for weeks with Sen. Kefauver, committee chairman. They have surrendered to him their corporations' ultra-secret cost records. Estes Kefauver has promised to keep each company's data mighty secret. It will be turned over to the comptroller general of the United States. There, for eventual use in open hearings, the data will be confidentially lumped in groups of three — the costs of the biggest three companies, the next three, etc.

But that isn't really keeping the steel people enthused. They aren't going to vote the senator the most popular man on the Hill in anticipation of his putting them on the public witness stand.

Nor will all this engender good will between the White House and the business houses — that good will the nation needs so badly now.

GRIN AND BEAR IT By George Lichty

Polar bears may be relentless killers, but they symbolize luck to the Eskimos.

To survive in Arctic wastes, the bears must constantly hunt for food. The never-ending search carries them many miles in a single day. When an Eskimo sees a bear, he knows that seals and fish are also near.

Trappers welcome the bear's presence, too. Valuable Arctic foxes often follow the footsteps of the giant carnivores, scavenging from kills.

The powerful, elongated bodies of polar bears have been equally at home on ice or in open sea for 10 million years. They have been clocked at 25 miles an hour on ice and have been known to swim 300 miles between floes.

Thick, oily fur supports the bears in water and enables them to swim or float for hours. So heavy are their coats that scientists hunting with drug-tipped darts have had to make a hasty retreat when the darts bounced harmlessly away.

Nature has given the bears built-in Arctic sunglasses to prevent snow blindness. A special lid protects their eyes from glare.

The Douglas Dictum

By David Lawrence

Opinion Opens A Broad Field Of Thought

Whether or not the latest Supreme Court decision on the subject of an official prayer in the public schools is soundly based, it has brought sharply to the foreground a discussion of the whole subject of government financing, directly or indirectly, of institution or activity which relates even remotely to religion.

David Lawrence

The main ruling of the court was on a narrow question — that is, whether a state can direct that a particular prayer be recited, even though the prayer is itself general and denominationally neutral. The issue was whether the state has a right to dictate to the schools any form of prayer. If it does have such discretion, then one day the prayer might be neutral, and another day some other prayer with denominational overtones might be ordered by the state board of education.

Although the Supreme Court decided only that no state could direct any official prayer, there was a concurring opinion by Justice Douglas which is bound to attract nationwide attention. What Mr. Douglas said is known as "dictum" and has no bearing on the ruling itself, even though he concurred in the result.

The big question is whether Mr. Douglas's views will be shared by other members of the court and whether a majority ever will join with him in putting into a ruling the point of view which he has just expressed.

"It is customary," wrote Justice Douglas, "in deciding a constitutional question to treat it in its narrowest form. Yet at times the setting of the question gives it a form and content which no abstract treatment could do. The point for decision is whether the government can constitutionally finance a religious exercise.

"Our system at the federal and state levels is presently honeycombed with such financing. Nevertheless, I think it is an unconstitutional undertaking whatever form it takes."

STANDING by itself, this is a very broad statement, but it is even more significant because Justice Douglas attached a footnote in which he presented an extract from a book by David Fellman entitled "The Limits of Freedom."

This particular quotation listed the many aids to religion at all levels of government, such as provision for chaplains of both houses of Congress and in the armed services, compulsory chapel at the armed service academies, and religious services in federal hospitals and prisons. It also pointed out that the president issues religious proclamations, that the Bible is used for the administration of oaths, and that federal funds were available to parochial schools during the depression in the 1930s.

It then adds: "Veterans receiving money under the 'GI' bill of 1944 could attend denominational schools, to which payents were made directly by the government.

"During World War II, federal money was contributed to denominational schools for the training of nurses. The benefits of the National School Lunch Act are available to students in private as well as public schools. The Hospital Survey and Construction Act of 1946 specifically made money available to non-public hospitals. . . .

"This list of federal aids' could easily be expanded, and of course there is a long list in each state."

This is the first time that any justice of the Supreme Court has even hinted that all forms of federal financing are unconstitutional if they go to religious institutions directly or indirectly. Such a sweeping disapproval of federal aid has never been espoused by any prominent member of Congress.

Justice Douglas even would reverse the famous case of "Everson vs. Board of Education," in which he voted with the majority in 1947. It upheld the use of taxpayers' money to pay "the bus fares of parochial school pupils as a part of a general program" under which the fares of pupils attending public and other schools were also paid. He says:

"The Everson case seems in retrospect to be out of line with the First Amendment. Its result is appealing, as it allows aid to be given to needy children. Yet by the same token, public funds could be used to satisfy other needs of children in parochial schools — lunches, books, and tuition being obvious examples."

Justice Douglas, in effect, is taking issue with President Kennedy, who, while contending that "across the board" aid to all church-related educational institutions would be unconstitutional, holds that there is no such bar to aid being given at only the college level where mathematics and other scientific subjects are taught.

Mr. Douglas would sweep out mental aid to church-related institutions, including tuition grants to war veterans.

The factor of discrimination as between citizens, of course, comes into the controversy. Persons of a particular religious faith who offer their lives in sacrifice during war do not like to be told that, when they come back from a war, they cannot be recompensed, for instance, by tuition payments which would help them get the education they were denied on account of the government's summons to military service. The subject will be debated for a long, long time to come.

Reformatory Term Given

A North Lima man was given a penal term and an East Liverpool man was warned at probation hearings Thursday before Common Pleas Judge Joel H. Sharp in Lisbon.

Norman R. McLaughlin, 20, was sentenced to 1-15 years in the Mansfield Reformatory for violation.

Placed on five years' probation on March 27, 1961, for the burglary of the John Falkner garage near Rogers on Sept. 15, 1960, McLaughlin failed to pay court costs and make restitution, failed to provide for his child and was involved in an auto accident.

Arlan L. Bailey, 21, of 1798 Michigan Ave., who was placed on five years' probation Dec. 29, 1959, for the theft of the auto of Ray Randolph in Salineville on Aug. 24, 1959, was admonished by Judge Sharp and returned to probation.

Bailey had been cited by Wellsville police for driving without a license but told Judge Sharp he was not driving. He said he only allowed a car to drift out of a drive and across the street where he parked it. The motor was not running, he added.

West Virginia Due Lower Auto Insurance Rates

NEW YORK (AP) — Two national associations of automobile insurance underwriters have announced lower premium rates for all areas of West Virginia except Huntington and Kanawha County outside of Charleston.

The reductions will be effective July 1 although motorists won't notice the difference until they renew their current policies.

The cheaper rates, announced by the National Bureau of Casualty Underwriters and the National Automobile Underwriters Association, are expected to result in a $730,000 annual savings in premium payments.

A decrease in the number of liability and comprehensive coverage claims was cited as the major basis for the reduction.

The casualty underwriters bureau said cost of auto liability insurance would drop about 8.8 per cent. The National Auto Underwriters Association estimated an average reduction of 6 per cent for physical damage insurance.

Restaurant Burglars Force Coin Machines

Police searched today for burglars who rifled two coin-operated machines and stole three boxes of cigars and 54 pennies in an entry Thursday at Maggie's Restaurant, 1845 Dresden Ave.

The intruders used a screw driver to pry the lock from the front door sometime between 2 and 9 a.m., officers said. Then they broke into a music machine and a cigarette vending device, taking an undetermined amount of change. The 54 pennies were removed from the cash register.

Patrolman Charles A. Winters investigated.

Vendor For 31 Years Gets New Stand As Gift

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — For 31 years, physically handicapped Cal Phares has been selling peanuts on a Miami street corner.

Policeman Ralph Martin noticed recently that the 59-year-old Phares' vending stand was getting rickety.

"Cal used to give free peanuts to kids who couldn't afford them," Martin said. "I figured it was about time to get him a new stand."

The officer was planning a collection when contractor Vernon Burt volunteered to handle the job.

During off hours Thursday, the contractor and his crew surprised Phares by moving in and building a sturdy new stand. With the stand, worth about $75, went a bill of sale specifying a price of three bags of peanuts.

With tears in his eyes, Phares paid off promptly.

Cleveland Man Arrested In Theft Of Money Orders

CLEVELAND (AP) — A Maple Heights man was arrested for possession of four of the 1,820 money orders stolen in a burglary at the post office in Madison the night of Dec. 13. He was released under $1,000 bond.

John J. Caroccio, 36, is the first person to be arrested in connection with the burglary in which money orders with a total cash value of $180,000 were stolen along with $3,600 worth of stamps and $400 in cash.

Caroccio waived a hearing and grand jury action when arraigned before U. S. Commissioner Herbert A. Horn. There has been no evidence that he was one of the burglars.

Postal inspector Frank J. Farrell said none of the stolen money orders has been cashed. It has not been determined where Caroccio got the money orders he had in his possession when he was arrested in a parking lot in Garfield Heights, Farrell added.

Reformatory Term Given

A North Lima man was given a penal term and an East Liverpool man was warned at probation hearings Thursday before Common Pleas Judge Joel H. Sharp in Lisbon.

Norman R. McLaughlin, 20, was sentenced to 1-15 years in the Mansfield Reformatory for violation.

Placed on five years' probation on March 27, 1961, for the burglary of the John Falkner garage near Rogers on Sept. 15, 1960, McLaughlin failed to pay court costs and make restitution, failed to provide for his child and was involved in an auto accident.

Arlan L. Bailey, 21, of 1798 Michigan Ave., who was placed on five years' probation Dec. 29, 1959, for the theft of the auto of Ray Randolph in Salineville on Aug. 24, 1959, was admonished by Judge Sharp and returned to probation.

Bailey had been cited by Wellsville police for driving without a license but told Judge Sharp he was not driving. He said he only allowed a car to drift out of a drive and across the street where he parked it. The motor was not running, he added.

West Virginia Due Lower Auto Insurance Rates

NEW YORK (AP) — Two national associations of automobile insurance underwriters have announced lower premium rates for all areas of West Virginia except Huntington and Kanawha County outside of Charleston.

The reductions will be effective July 1 although motorists won't notice the difference until they renew their current policies.

The cheaper rates, announced by the National Bureau of Casualty Underwriters and the National Automobile Underwriters Association, are expected to result in a $730,000 annual savings in premium payments.

A decrease in the number of liability and comprehensive coverage claims was cited as the major basis for the reduction.

The casualty underwriters bureau said cost of auto liability insurance would drop about 8.8 per cent. The National Auto Underwriters Association estimated an average reduction of 6 per cent for physical damage insurance.

Restaurant Burglars Force Coin Machines

Police searched today for burglars who rifled two coin-operated machines and stole three boxes of cigars and 54 pennies in an entry Thursday at Maggie's Restaurant, 1845 Dresden Ave.

The intruders used a screw driver to pry the lock from the front door sometime between 2 and 9 a.m., officers said. Then they broke into a music machine and a cigarette vending device, taking an undetermined amount of change. The 54 pennies were removed from the cash register.

Patrolman Charles A. Winters investigated.

Council Reminded

Midland Advised Of Ban On Dump

Midland Council Thursday evening was reminded that its dump in Ohioville will be closed in the near future and a sanitary land-fill will be necessary.

The subject of the dump in Cow Hollow was brought up by John McGovern of Beaver, a Pennsylvania state health inspector, who inquired as to the borough's plans since his inspection May 22 with Council's health committee and R. E. Steebner, borough engineer.

—:—

McGOVERN said residents of Ohioville claim the dump is "an eyesore." He said the present operation is not permissible with the state, because of rats, flies and mosquitos.

He said the state is closing all open dumps and boroughs are being warned now to consider land-fills.

Another site in Ohioville, six miles away, was suggested and McGovern said it probably would not cost the borough much more than now.

Councilman Joseph Hibbard asked what the borough could do to continue using the dump. McGovern said, "clean it up, cover it, use rat baiting and keep it covered as a land-fill operation."

He said the dump is getting closer and closer to a creek in that area and could become a violation of the stream pollution act of the Department of Forests and Waters.

MCGOVERN said converting the dump would be a waste of money. He said it will be only a matter of time until the borough will have to discontinue burning at the dump because of an anti-smoke law to be passed.

He said if the borough went to a land-fill, there would be no fly ash or rodent problem and it would be much cleaner and approved. He said the borough could take in other haulers, Ohioville and Industry, to defray expenses.

Steebner said the borough dumps rubbish but no garbage. McGovern said the state considers cans as garbage since rats can feed off them and they allow flies and mosquitos to breed.

Steebner said much of the problem is caused by outside haulers, even some from out-of-state.

MCGOVERN said New Castle had to close its dump and now has a good land-fill operation. He said and Beaver Falls is considering one due to expenses of its incinerator.

It was pointed out that hauling six miles seemed too far. McGovern said that at Beaver, the hauler goes 40 miles a round trip.

Mayor Eli Corak told McGovern that the dump is a big problem, "the state tells you what to do but not how to get the money."

William Vinovich, president, told McGovern that the health committee and Steebner will continue Council's study of the problem.

CONCERNING an off - street parking study and survey, Council approved a recommendation of Mayor Corak and motion by Councilman Joseph D'Alesio that it be turned over to the Municipal Authority.

Corak said the authority has the funds to buy property to eliminate the problem of overcrowded parking areas. A study of off-street parking has been under way since last year and a survey by Michael Baker Jr., Inc. of Rochester was completed in January this year.

William I. McInerney, president of the Carnegie Library Board of Trustees, reported on progress to obtain a senior citizens' reading room addition.

HE READ A letter from Sen. Joseph S. Clark who said he believes the Midland project would be available for federal funds under a bill sponsored by Clark and passed in the Senate May 28.

McInerney said Rep. Frank M. Clark is in favor of the project. The bill now goes to the House.

McInerney said an application has been prepared for federal aid.

Marvin Bahm, representing a group of citizens asked that Council consider keeping the Memorial Swimming Pool open at night for use of adults. He suggested that the pool be kept open two nights a week and that a separate admission be charged.

MAYOR CORAK said that the idea was tried once and was not successful, as enough adults did not attend. He said several years ago the pool was kept open until 10 p.m. He said the pool now stays open now to 9, later than any municipal pool in the county.

Corak pointed to the additional expenses as Council already spends $5,000 to $7,000 a year for the pool's operation. He said certified lifeguards are hard to obtain.

He said the idea should be studied and said jokingly he would bet that not over a dozen people would attend. Bahm said he could get 300 signatures in a week, favoring the idea.

VINOVICH, chairman for Council's Pool committee, said the proposal will be studied and possibly given a test during a week in July. He also asked Bahm to circulate a petition for names of interested persons.

On motion of Councilman Raymond Presutti, Council awarded a contract for a bid of $4,190 to George Studen of Midland to construct a storage building near the borough garage on Railroad Ave. The bid was the lowest of six asked in May.

-:-

Steebner reported that most Midland Ave. property owners have complied with Council's notice to install walks where needed or repair them.

On motion by Councilman Lester Trainer, Council authorized Mayor Corak to designate vacations for borough employes.

Mrs. Ruby Ingraham attended as a representative of the Chamber of Commerce.

22 Boys Signed For YMCA Camp Opening Monday

Only 22 boys between 8 and 9 have signed up for a "midgets" session opening Tuesday afternoon, which will mark the beginning of the season for the YMCA's Pine Ridge Camp.

The camp has a capacity for 63 youngsters plus leaders for the 3½-day session, Carl A. Werner, general secretary, said.

Registrations also are being received for camps for boys and girls from 10 to 14, Werner said, with one girls' session virtually filled.

Girls will be in camp July 8-14; July 22-28 and Aug. 5-11 with boys' sessions slated on July 15-21; July 29-Aug. 4 and Aug. 12-18. The camp will close with another "midget" session Aug. 19-22.

A new gateway and road leading into the Madison Township camp will be opened this year, Werner said.

A 20x-30-foot concrete ramp has been constructed at the creek to make it easier for the youngsters to get in and out of the water during swimming periods.

Work also has been started on a blacktop area near the lodge which can be used for one tennis court or two basketball courts, Werner said.

Winona Youth Hurt As Auto Leaves Road

LISBON — An 18-year-old Winona youth is in "fair" condition today at Salem City Hospital with injuries suffered when he wrecked his car shortly after midnight on Route 9, about two miles south of Salem, the State Highway Patrol reported.

It was the second consecutive day in which only one mishap was listed in the county.

The patrol said Jerry Schaffer received a possible concussion, fractured jaw and lacerations of the left side of the face when he lost control on a curve at 12:10 a.m.

Schaffer's auto went off the right side, crossed back to the left and plowed into a tree, the patrol said.

Loveland's Law Director Blasts Cincinnati's Tax

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The village of Loveland's law director, Vernon Stiver, told the Ohio Supreme Court Thursday that Cincinnati's income tax ordinance interferes with the village's right to tax its own citizens.

Stiver said Loveland wants a share in the city income tax collected by Cincinnati from Loveland residents who work in Cincinnati. The village is a suburban community 15 miles northeast of Cincinnati.

The dispute stems from a Loveland ordinance which forbids its residents to pay taxes to cities with no sharing agreements.

The high court said it will probably decide within three weeks whether to admit the "share the tax" case for study. If the review is granted, the case would be heard on its merits next autumn.

License Proposed On Ohio Reactor By AEC Official

WASHINGTON (AP) — Unless there are petitions for review or a review is ordered by the Atomic Energy Commission, the nuclear power reactor at Piqua, Ohio, will be granted provisionsl operating authority Aug. 14.

AEC examiner Samuel W. Jensch said Thursday he recommended issuing a provisionsl operating authorization license after indications were the reactor could be operated without endangering the public health and safety.

North American Aviation Co. built the reactor and would operate it under the one - year provisional license. Then Piqua would take over operation of the 11,400 kilowatt reactor to provide power for its electric power and steam distribution system.

Wreck At High Speed Kills One In Stolen Car

RAVENNA, Ohio (AP)—One of two men riding in a stolen car was killed in a smashup after a high-speed chase early today, sheriff's deputies reported.

The victim was Kenneth Collopy, 26, of Ravenna. The second-man was being hunted in a wooded area north of Hiram.

The car went out of control and crashed along Ohio 700 while being chased by a Garrettsville patrolman.

3 Akron Men Held To Court

Three Akron men were bound to the Grand Jury on charges of auto theft at hearings Thursday afternoon before County Judge Herbert Arfman at East Palestine while a charge against the brother of one was dropped at the request of the prosecutor.

L. D. LeFever, 28; Glen Lee, 19, and Boodie Price, 18, were held following preliminary hearings yesterday on charges of stealing a car owned by Mrs. Elizabeth Beatty of East Liverpool R. D. 1 a week ago.

Judge Arfman fixed bonds at $5,000 each for Price and Lee and at $3,000 for LeFever.

On a motion by Prosecuting Atty. G. William Brokaw, a charge of carrying a concealed weapon against Norman LeFever, 25, was dismissed "for good cause shown.

Price, Lee and L. D. LeFever were apprehended by a Portage County deputy sheriff after the car was found ditched. The younger LeFever was picked up by Salem police at the request of the Columbiana County sheriff's department.

Council Reminded

Midland Advised Of Ban On Dump

Midland Council Thursday evening was reminded that its dump in Ohioville will be closed in the near future and a sanitary land-fill will be necessary.

The subject of the dump in Cow Hollow was brought up by John McGovern of Beaver, a Pennsylvania state health inspector, who inquired as to the borough's plans since his inspection May 22 with Council's health committee and R. E. Steebner, borough engineer.

—:—

McGOVERN said residents of Ohioville claim the dump is "an eyesore." He said the present operation is not permissible with the state, because of rats, flies and mosquitos.

He said the state is closing all open dumps and boroughs are being warned now to consider land-fills.

Another site in Ohioville, six miles away, was suggested and McGovern said it probably would not cost the borough much more than now.

Councilman Joseph Hibbard asked what the borough could do to continue using the dump. McGovern said, "clean it up, cover it, use rat baiting and keep it covered as a land-fill operation."

He said the dump is getting closer and closer to a creek in that area and could become a violation of the stream pollution act of the Department of Forests and Waters.

MCGOVERN said converting the dump would be a waste of money. He said it will be only a matter of time until the borough will have to discontinue burning at the dump because of an anti-smoke law to be passed.

He said if the borough went to a land-fill, there would be no fly ash or rodent problem and it would be much cleaner and approved. He said the borough could take in other haulers, Ohioville and Industry, to defray expenses.

Steebner said the borough dumps rubbish but no garbage. McGovern said the state considers cans as garbage since rats can feed off them and they allow flies and mosquitos to breed.

Steebner said much of the problem is caused by outside haulers, even some from out-of-state.

MCGOVERN said New Castle had to close its dump and now has a good land-fill operation. He said and Beaver Falls is considering one due to expenses of its incinerator.

It was pointed out that hauling six miles seemed too far. McGovern said that at Beaver, the hauler goes 40 miles a round trip.

Mayor Eli Corak told McGovern that the dump is a big problem, "the state tells you what to do but not how to get the money."

William Vinovich, president, told McGovern that the health committee and Steebner will continue Council's study of the problem.

CONCERNING an off - street parking study and survey, Council approved a recommendation of Mayor Corak and motion by Councilman Joseph D'Alesio that it be turned over to the Municipal Authority.

Corak said the authority has the funds to buy property to eliminate the problem of overcrowded parking areas. A study of off-street parking has been under way since last year and a survey by Michael Baker Jr., Inc. of Rochester was completed in January this year.

William I. McInerney, president of the Carnegie Library Board of Trustees, reported on progress to obtain a senior citizens' reading room addition.

—:—

HE READ A letter from Sen. Joseph S. Clark who said he believes the Midland project would be available for federal funds under a bill sponsored by Clark and passed in the Senate May 28.

McInerney said Rep. Frank M. Clark is in favor of the project. The bill now goes to the House.

McInerney said an application has been prepared for federal aid.

Marvin Bahm, representing a group of citizens asked that Council consider keeping the Memorial Swimming Pool open at night for use of adults. He suggested that the pool be kept open two nights a week and that a separate admission be charged.

MAYOR CORAK said that the idea was tried once and was not successful, as enough adults did not attend. He said several years ago the pool was kept open until 10 p.m. He said the pool now stays open now to 9, later than any municipal pool in the county.

Corak pointed to the additional expenses as Council already spends $5,000 to $7,000 a year for the pool's operation. He said certified lifeguards are hard to obtain.

He said the idea should be studied and said jokingly he would bet that not over a dozen people would attend. Bahm said he could get 300 signatures in a week, favoring the idea.

VINOVICH, chairman for Council's Pool committee, said the proposal will be studied and possibly given a test during a week in July. He also asked Bahm to circulate a petition for names of interested persons.

On motion of Councilman Raymond Presutti, Council awarded a contract for a bid of $4,190 to George Studen of Midland to construct a storage building near the borough garage on Railroad Ave. The bid was the lowest of six asked in May.

-:-

Steebner reported that most Midland Ave. property owners have complied with Council's notice to install walks where needed or repair them.

On motion by Councilman Lester Trainer, Council authorized Mayor Corak to designate vacations for borough employes.

Mrs. Ruby Ingraham attended as a representative of the Chamber of Commerce.

22 Boys Signed For YMCA Camp Opening Monday

Only 22 boys between 8 and 9 have signed up for a "midgets" session opening Tuesday afternoon, which will mark the beginning of the season for the YMCA's Pine Ridge Camp.

The camp has a capacity for 63 youngsters plus leaders for the 3½-day session, Carl A. Werner, general secretary, said.

Registrations also are being received for camps for boys and girls from 10 to 14, Werner said, with one girls' session virtually filled.

Girls will be in camp July 8-14; July 22-28 and Aug. 5-11 with boys' sessions slated on July 15-21; July 29-Aug. 4 and Aug. 12-18. The camp will close with another "midget" session Aug. 19-22.

A new gateway and road leading into the Madison Township camp will be opened this year, Werner said.

A 20x-30-foot concrete ramp has been constructed at the creek to make it easier for the youngsters to get in and out of the water during swimming periods.

Work also has been started on a blacktop area near the lodge which can be used for one tennis court or two basketball courts, Werner said.

The scouts along with Donald Theiss of Chester, training chairman for Cherokee District and William Rayburn of Calcutta, camping and activities chairman of Cherokee District, will leave the Stone House July 6 about 9:30 p. m. to take a train at Youngstown.

Winona Youth Hurt As Auto Leaves Road

LISBON — An 18-year-old Winona youth is in "fair" condition today at Salem City Hospital with injuries suffered when he wrecked his car shortly after midnight on Route 9, about two miles south of Salem, the State Highway Patrol reported.

It was the second consecutive day in which only one mishap was listed in the county.

The patrol said Jerry Schaffer received a possible concussion, fractured jaw and lacerations of the left side of the face when he lost control on a curve at 12:10 a.m.

Schaffer's auto went off the right side, crossed back to the left and plowed into a tree, the patrol said.

License Proposed On Ohio Reactor By AEC Official

WASHINGTON (AP) — Unless there are petitions for review or a review is ordered by the Atomic Energy Commission, the nuclear power reactor at Piqua, Ohio, will be granted provisionsl operating authority Aug. 14.

AEC examiner Samuel W. Jensch said Thursday he recommended issuing a provisionsl operating authorization license after indications were the reactor could be operated without endangering the public health and safety.

North American Aviation Co. built the reactor and would operate it under the one - year provisional license. Then Piqua would take over operation of the 11,400 kilowatt reactor to provide power for its electric power and steam distribution system.

Wreck At High Speed Kills One In Stolen Car

RAVENNA, Ohio (AP)—One of two men riding in a stolen car was killed in a smashup after a high-speed chase early today, sheriff's deputies reported.

The victim was Kenneth Collopy, 26, of Ravenna. The second-man was being hunted in a wooded area north of Hiram.

The car went out of control and crashed along Ohio 700 while being chased by a Garrettsville patrolman.

Loveland's Law Director Blasts Cincinnati's Tax

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The village of Loveland's law director, Vernon Stiver, told the Ohio Supreme Court Thursday that Cincinnati's income tax ordinance interferes with the village's right to tax its own citizens.

Stiver said Loveland wants a share in the city income tax collected by Cincinnati from Loveland residents who work in Cincinnati. The village is a suburban community 15 miles northeast of Cincinnati.

The dispute stems from a Loveland ordinance which forbids its residents to pay taxes to cities with no sharing agreements.

The high court said it will probably decide within three weeks whether to admit the "share the tax" case for study. If the review is granted, the case would be heard on its merits next autumn.

Prayer Ban Draws Mixed Feeling In West Virginia

By The Associated Press

This week's U.S. Supreme Court decision outlawing official prayers in public schools drew mixed reaction from West Virginia clergymen and newspaper editors. Some advocated a constitutional amendment to nullify the ruling.

The Rev. Albert C. Howe of Stout Memorial Methodist Church in Parkersburg said:

"According to the Constitution, the Supreme Court ruled correctly. We should not castigate the justices but should change the Constitution to permit non-sectarian observance of prayer and the Scriptures in public schools."

The Huntington Advertiser expressed the same view in an editorial which said:

"The last word does not lie with the court but with the people. The obvious remedy is a constitutional amendment setting forth specifically the kind of religious observances permissible in public schools."

The Rev. Griffin C. Callahan of Trinity Episcopal Church in Parkersburg thought the decision could "be a blessing in forcing us to teach and demonstrate our religion within the family and in our own parishes or synagogues." He also said:

"In some future generation would it not be repugnant to Christians to have their children forced to say some prayer dictated by a government whose views on God might be alien to Christian doctrine? Now this is safely prevented by the new ruling of the Supreme Court.

"Secondly, and more important in my opinion, the brief nod to God and the common attempt to syncretize all religions in one simple prayer can do more harm in dulling the religions of America than any laws banning such practices could ever do."

Other comment:

The Charleston Daily Mail — "The First Amendment aside, it is the merit of the Supreme Court's decision that it leaves the whole matter of religious instruction and observance exactly where it belongs—in the hands of parents and such spiritual leaders as they may choose for the guidance of their children."

The Very Rev. George J. Burke of St. Joseph's Catholic Church, Huntington — "The Supreme Court is bending backward to prove that we are an atheistic country rather than the nation our forefathers intended us to be. They never intended that there should be disregard of Almighty God when they planned separation of church and state."

The Charleston Gazette — "The very makeup of the groups which appeared before the court is indicative of the diversity of faiths which the teacher must appease when he offers prayers. It would be far wiser for the public school teacher to teach academic subjects and leave religious instruction to churches and synagogues."

Rabbi Jacob M. Danziger of B'nai Israel Synagogue, Huntington — "Though both Jews and Christians from early times have relied on religion as a basis of ethics, I feel that the synagogue, the church and the home is the place for prayer."

The Parkersburg Sentinel —" . . . as the minority opinion from the Supreme Court said, we acknowledge the existence of God officially and in a variety of ways. We pray in the halls of Congress. We have God mentioned on our coins. We appeal to God in our United States District Courts. Even the Supreme Court appeals to God when it meets.

"Would it not be appropriate to make God constitutional with a special amendment? It seems such action is not only appropriate but long overdue."

Dr. Aldred P. Wallace of Johnson Memorial Methodist Church, Huntington — "I feel that the Supreme Court had a point, in that it ruled against a prayer prepared by a governmental agency.

"Should the court give a broader interpretation, ruling against prayer as such, I would feel differently. But I feel that there is danger in the precedent set by a prayer established by a government."

Ohio Firm's Gas Rate Settlement Approved

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Power Commission has approved a gas rate settlement proposed by the Ohio Oil Co. of Findlay, Ohio, which provides for an annual reduction of about $530,000 in the company's future revenues.

No refunds were involved in the settlement Thursday.

The commission approval ends a general investigation of the company's gas rates and 15 proceedings in which Ohio Oil had applied for higher revenues.

Although reducing future revenues by $530,000 a year, the settlement will give the company about $185,000 more than it would be collecting had it not filed for any of the increases involved in Thursday's action.

West Virginia Club And Woman Gain Recognition

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Logan, W. Va., Woman's Club is $10,000 richer today and a Montgomery, W. Va., woman assumes responsibility for directing activities of junior women's clubs throughout the world.

Delegates to the General Federation of Women's Clubs convention last night awarded the $10,000 first prize to the Logan club for its work in fighting problems of a depressed coal mining county.

Logan was chosen from among the 8,600 entries in a nationwide community improvement contest sponsored by the federation and the Sears-Roebuck Foundation.

As a result of the Logan women's efforts and others of the community, $256,000 was raised to attract new industry. The club also worked to help the unemployed and needy and taught miners a new trade of stonecutting.

Meanwhile, Mrs. James Scarbro of Montgomery, W. Va., will be installed tonight as worldwide director of junior clubs affiliated with the General Federation.

Mrs. Dexter Otis Arnold of Concord, N. H. was to assume the presidency of the federation, succeeding Mrs. E. Lee Ozbirn of Oklahoma City, Okla.

Wheatley Seeks Open Rule Policy In Law On Trade

Seeking a so-called open rule policy in pending federal legislation on trade expansion and retraining of displaced workers, E. L. Wheatley, president of the International Brotherhood of Operative Potters, has asked the House rules committee not to adopt a clause "delegating authority to the State Department and the executive branch."

Wheatley explained he feared the rules committee would include a provision forbidding amendments to the proposed law on the floor of Congress.

He urged that the committee "adopt the open rule policy which will permit Congress to provide more proper protection for the many workers and citizens throughout the nation who suffer now as a result of cheap foreign imports and are fearful of more drastic lowering of their economic levels. . ."

In a telegram to Rep. Howard Smith, chairman of the committee, Wheatley pointed out his union speaks for 22,000 employes in the pottery industry and is affiliated with eight other AFL-CIO unions comprising over 210,000 members in the ceramics and allied industries.

CLEVELAND (AP) — An 18-year-old youth has been charged with second-degree murder in the fatal beating of his 3-year-old stepson with a leather belt. Homicide detectives said Raymond D. Thompkins, told them he beat the boy, Jerome, for bed wetting. The child died Wednesday night.

No Sign Others Will Pass

House Vote On Trade Bill Seen Tonic For Kennedy

WASHINGTON (AP) — The thumping House vote for his trade expansion bill came like a tonic for President Kennedy, who had begun to talk like a frustrated man.

It's no sign, however, that other big, controversial measures on the Kennedy program will get through. The reciprocal trade policy, begun in 1934, has had considerable support in both parties for years. President Eisenhower, for instance, was for lowering of trade barriers.

On other issues — his defeated farm bill for example — Kennedy has been learning the hard way the truth of a political maxim:

A presidential candidate's ability to promise is usually far greater than his ability to perform. Especially if he promises big innovations.

In the 1960 campaign, Kennedy pledged bold and novel programs which, he argued, were needed to "get this country going again."

This week he acknowledged, at a news conference, that he lacks a dependable working majority in Congress to get the job done. This despite the fact that the Democrats have big majorities in both chambers—64 to 35 in the Senate and 263 to 174 in the House.

Kennedy said it was hard to get any big, controversial bill through because so many Democrats vote with the Republicans. But this has been going on for years.

In fact, the last president who could make sweeping promises of bold innovations, with any real hope of being able to perform, was Franklin D. Roosevelt in the 1932 campaign.

When he got elected, Congress really ate out of his hand for a while, passing bill after bill containing vast social and economic innovations. But that was because the country had been going through an economic cataclysm—the Great Depression. The mood of Congress, and the country, was anything but conservative.

But the New Deal ran out of steam after a while. A turning point might be said to have come in 1937. That year Roosevelt, angered because the Supreme Court had knocked down NRA and some of his other measures, proposed a bill which would have enabled him to enlarge and thereby pack the court. The bill was beaten.

Since the mood of Congress has largely been conservative. There have been no great innovations in domestic policy, barring of course the emergency measures of World War II.

If the Democratic party were a single unity, with a common viewpoint, Kennedy could count on a dependable majority. But the party has seldom been this. It's like a big tent, sheltering liberals and conservatives. To a degree, this also can be said of the Republican party.

In Congress the conservatives — Republican and Democratic — are the dominating force, and there's no sign on the horizon that this situation is likely to change any time soon.

The name of the Kansas state capital city, Topeka, is an Omaha Indian word meaning "A good place to dig potatoes."

Controls On Cheating In Arms Pact Urged

About 130 delegates from the United States, Europe, Asia, Africa and the Western Hemisphere attended the week-long conference.

Prayer Ban Draws Mixed Feeling In West Virginia

By The Associated Press

This week's U.S. Supreme Court decision outlawing official prayers in public schools drew mixed reaction from West Virginia clergymen and newspaper editors. Some advocated a constitutional amendment to nullify the ruling.

The Rev. Albert C. Howe of Stout Memorial Methodist Church in Parkersburg said:

"According to the Constitution, the Supreme Court ruled correctly. We should not castigate the justices but should change the Constitution to permit non-sectarian observance of prayer and the Scriptures in public schools."

The Huntington Advertiser expressed the same view in an editorial which said:

"The last word does not lie with the court but with the people. The obvious remedy is a constitutional amendment setting forth specifically the kind of religious observances permissible in public schools."

The Rev. Griffin C. Callahan of Trinity Episcopal Church in Parkersburg thought the decision could "be a blessing in forcing us to teach and demonstrate our religion within the family and in our own parishes or synagogues." He also said:

"In some future generation would it not be repugnant to Christians to have their children forced to say some prayer dictated by a government whose views on God might be alien to Christian doctrine? Now this is safely prevented by the new ruling of the Supreme Court.

"Secondly, and more important in my opinion, the brief nod to God and the common attempt to syncretize all religions in one simple prayer can do more harm in dulling the religions of America than any laws banning such practices could ever do."

Other comment:

The Charleston Daily Mail — "The First Amendment aside, it is the merit of the Supreme Court's decision that it leaves the whole matter of religious instruction and observance exactly where it belongs—in the hands of parents and such spiritual leaders as they may choose for the guidance of their children."

The Very Rev. George J. Burke of St. Joseph's Catholic Church, Huntington — "The Supreme Court is bending backward to prove that we are an atheistic country rather than the nation our forefathers intended us to be. They never intended that there should be disregard of Almighty God when they planned separation of church and state."

The Charleston Gazette — "The very makeup of the groups which appeared before the court is indicative of the diversity of faiths which the teacher must appease when he offers prayers. It would be far wiser for the public school teacher to teach academic subjects and leave religious instruction to churches and synagogues."

Rabbi Jacob M. Danziger of B'nai Israel Synagogue, Huntington — "Though both Jews and Christians from early times have relied on religion as a basis of ethics, I feel that the synagogue, the church and the home is the place for prayer."

The Parkersburg Sentinel — ". . . as the minority opinion from the Supreme Court said, we acknowledge the existence of God officially and in a variety of ways. We pray in the halls of Congress. We have God mentioned on our coins. We appeal to God in our United States District Courts. Even the Supreme Court appeals to God when it meets.

"Would it not be appropriate to make God constitutional with a special amendment? It seems such action is not only appropriate but long overdue."

Dr. Aldred P. Wallace of Johnson Memorial Methodist Church, Huntington — "I feel that the Supreme Court had a point, in that it ruled against a prayer prepared by a governmental agency.

"Should the court give a broader interpretation, ruling against prayer as such, I would feel differently. But I feel that there is danger in the precedent set by a prayer established by a government."

Ohio Firm's Gas Rate Settlement Approved

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Power Commission has approved a gas rate settlement proposed by the Ohio Oil Co. of Findlay, Ohio, which provides for an annual reduction of about $530,000 in the company's future revenues.

No refunds were involved in the settlement Thursday.

The commission approval ends a general investigation of the company's gas rates and 15 proceedings in which Ohio Oil had applied for higher revenues.

Although reducing future revenues by $530,000 a year, the settlement will give the company about $185,000 more than it would be collecting had it not filed for any of the increases involved in Thursday's action.

West Virginia Club And Woman Gain Recognition

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Logan, W. Va., Woman's Club is $10,000 richer today and a Montgomery, W. Va., woman assumes responsibility for directing activities of junior women's clubs throughout the world.

Delegates to the General Federation of Women's Clubs convention last night awarded the $10,000 first prize to the Logan club for its work in fighting problems of a depressed coal mining county.

Logan was chosen from among the 8,600 entries in a nationwide community improvement contest sponsored by the federation and the Sears-Roebuck Foundation.

As a result of the Logan women's efforts and others of the community, $256,000 was raised to attract new industry. The club also worked to help the unemployed and needy and taught miners a new trade of stonecutting.

Meanwhile, Mrs. James Scarbro of Montgomery, W. Va., will be installed tonight as worldwide director of junior clubs affiliated with the General Federation.

Mrs. Dexter Otis Arnold of Concord, N. H. was to assume the presidency of the federation, succeeding Mrs. E. Lee Ozbirn of Oklahoma City, Okla.

Wheatley Seeks Open Rule Policy In Law On Trade

Seeking a so-called open rule policy in pending federal legislation on trade expansion and retraining of displaced workers, E. L. Wheatley, president of the International Brotherhood of Operative Potters, has asked the House rules committee not to adopt a clause "delegating authority to the State Department and the executive branch."

Wheatley explained he feared the rules committee would include a provision forbidding amendments to the proposed law on the floor of Congress.

He urged that the committee "adopt the open rule policy which will permit Congress to provide more proper protection for the many workers and citizens throughout the nation who suffer now as a result of cheap foreign imports and are fearful of more drastic lowering of their economic levels. . ."

In a telegram to Rep. Howard Smith, chairman of the committee, Wheatley pointed out his union speaks for 22,000 employes in the pottery industry and is affiliated with eight other AFL-CIO unions comprising over 210,000 members in the ceramics and allied industries.

Arrested For Fraud

CLEVELAND (AP) — Adrian John Hritz, 27, of North Ridgeville was arrested by FBI agents Thursday on a charge of embezzling $5,000 from the Thrift Federal Savings & Loan Association where he had been a teller the last four years.

Charged In Murder

CLEVELAND (AP) — An 18-year-old youth has been charged with second-degree murder in the fatal beating of his 3-year-old stepson with a leather belt. Homicide detectives said Raymond D. Thompkins, told them he beat the boy, Jerome, for bed wetting. The child died Wednesday night.

No Sign Others Will Pass

House Vote On Trade Bill Seen Tonic For Kennedy

WASHINGTON (AP) — The thumping House vote for his trade expansion bill came like a tonic for President Kennedy, who had begun to talk like a frustrated man.

It's no sign, however, that other big, controversial measures on the Kennedy program will get through. The reciprocal trade policy, begun in 1934, has had considerable support in both parties for years. President Eisenhower, for instance, was for lowering of trade barriers.

On other issues — his defeated farm bill for example — Kennedy has been learning the hard way the truth of a political maxim:

A presidential candidate's ability to promise is usually far greater than his ability to perform. Especially if he promises big innovations.

In the 1960 campaign, Kennedy pledged bold and novel programs which, he argued, were needed to "get this country going again."

This week he acknowledged, at a news conference, that he lacks a dependable working majority in Congress to get the job done. This despite the fact that the Democrats have big majorities in both chambers—64 to 35 in the Senate and 263 to 174 in the House.

Kennedy said it was hard to get any big, controversial bill through because so many Democrats vote with the Republicans. But this has been going on for years.

In fact, the last president who could make sweeping promises of bold innovations, with any real hope of being able to perform, was Franklin D. Roosevelt in the 1932 campaign.

When he got elected, Congress really ate out of his hand for a while, passing bill after bill containing vast social and economic innovations. But that was because the country had been going through an economic cataclysm—the Great Depression. The mood of Congress, and the country, was anything but conservative.

But the New Deal ran out of steam after a while. A turning point might be said to have come in 1937. That year Roosevelt, angered because the Supreme Court had knocked down NRA and some of his other measures, proposed a bill which would have enabled him to enlarge and thereby pack the court. The bill was beaten.

Since the mood of Congress has largely been conservative. There have been no great innovations in domestic policy, barring of course the emergency measures of World War II.

If the Democratic party were a single unity, with a common viewpoint, Kennedy could count on a dependable majority. But the party has seldom been this. It's like a big tent, sheltering liberals and conservatives. To a degree, this also can be said of the Republican party.

In Congress the conservatives — Republican and Democratic — are the dominating force, and there's no sign on the horizon that this situation is likely to change any time soon.

The name of the Kansas state capital city, Topeka, is an Omaha Indian word meaning "A good place to dig potatoes."

Controls On Cheating In Arms Pact Urged

ACCRA, Ghana (AP) — The world without the bomb conference ended Thursday with calls for strict controls against cheating in any disarmament treaty.

About 130 delegates from the United States, Europe, Asia, Africa and the Western Hemisphere attended the week-long conference.

Miss Saundra Moll Weds Lt. L. R. Needs At Midland

The First Presbyterian Church of Midland was the scene of the wedding of Miss Saundra Sue Moll and Lt. Larry R. Needs the afternoon of June 17 at 3:30 o'clock before an altar adorned with vases of white snapdragons interspersed with baby's breath and ferns.

The double-ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. George H. Bohlender. Miss Vivian Jacobs gave a recital of traditional nuptial melodies at the organ. Miss June Singleton, classmate of the bride during high school and college, sang the wedding hymns.

The family pews were marked with white satin bows and greenery.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, appeared in a white gown of silk organza over taffeta styled with a V-neckline trimmed with Alencon lace and long, tapered sleeves. The bell-shaped skirt with Alencon applique in front was fashioned with a large back bow and ended in a chapel train.

An arrangement of gardenias and streamers knotted with stephanotis topped the Bible.

For the familiar wedding traditions, the bride wore a sixpence in her shoe, brought from Wales and given her by the bridegroom's grandmother, Mrs. A. J. Needs, and a lace handkerchief from France borrowed by the minister's wife. Thirty-eight brides, including Mrs. Bohlender, have carried it at their weddings. The handmade blue garter was given her by a friend.

Lt. Needs was attired in full dress Army uniform.

Miss Jane Lellis of Cleveland, a college classmate of the bride, was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Joan Carter and Georgianna Raich, both of Midland, high school classmates. Diane Studebaker of Bedford, cousin of the bride, was junior bridesmaid.

The attendants wore identical peacock silk organza sheaths over taffeta, fashioned with bateau necklines, three-quarter sleeves and detachable overskirts. They wore matching Dior bows with bouffant nose veils and matching shoes. The junior bridesmaid's dress was fashioned with a full skirt. They carried crescent-shaped bouquets of spring flowers.

The bride presented her attendants with wedding bracelets.

David Needs, brother of the bridegroom, was best man and ushers were Kenneth Moll, brother of the bride, and Charles Replane. Robert Needs, another brother, was junior usher.

MRS. L. R. NEEDS

The bride's mother wore a pink Moygashell imported linen sheath with matching flowered hat and accessories and a cerise orchid corsage. The bridegroom's mother was attired in a pale yellow crepe outfit with a hat of green leaves and yellow flowers with matching accessories. She carried a matching purse adorned with an arrangement of yellow cymbidium orchids.

The grandmothers, Mrs. H. R. Moll of Pittsburgh, Mrs. Needs of Midland and Mrs. Charles Reed of Barnesville, wore corsages of white carnations.

The bride's parents entertained at a wedding reception for 125 guests at the Brodhead Hotel in Beaver Falls after the ceremony. The bridal table was centered with a four-tier wedding cake trimmed in pink and topped wtih wedding bells. Arrangements of snapdragons completed the table setting.

The bridegroom's parents entertained at a rehearsal dinner June 16 at Deramo's Restaurant.

Mrs. Victor George of Ohio View entertained the bridal party at a bride's brunch in her home at noon June 17.

High Court Swamped By Mail About Prayer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court had a good idea Thursday what happens when hundreds of persons decide to write to Washington.

Hundreds of letters and stacks of telegrams have poured into the court building since Justice Hugo Black announced last Monday the decision barring use of official prayers in public schools.

The actual number of messages received could not be learned. But the outpouring from all corners of the country, was reported to be the largest in the tribunal's history.

Under court custom, contents of the messages remained a secret.

Supreme Court justices, unlike their neighboring members of Congress, rarely answer fan mail.

Stomach Cancer Families

Miracles Do Happen

Q. Has anyone ever recovered from incurable cancer?

A. Now and then doctors encounter patients who recover in some miraculous and mysterious way. A physician recently related this story. Shortly after going into practice the doctor was consulted by a man in his 60's. Trouble was suspected and an exploratory operation performed. The worst was revealed — extensive, incurable cancer. The patient took the bad news in stride. This was in 1929. In 1961, 32 years after the original diagnosis, the patient, now 92, was struck by an automobile and passed away. An autopsy was performed and not a single remnant of cancer could be found! Incredible? Yes. But true, nevertheless.

Q. Is stomach cancer contagious? Is is inherited?

A. Cancer, stomach or otherwise, is not contagious. The answer to the second question is, "perhaps, in some cases." The most famous "stomach cancer family" was that of Napoleon Bonaparte. His grandfather died of suspected cancer of the stomach. His father, Charles Bonaparte, died at age 39 of the same disease. While the exact nature of Napoleon's illness was not determined, British medical officers concluded that the general's death was due to stomach cancer. Stomach cancer was also suspected as the cause of death of three of his sisters and one of his brothers. Other "stomach cancer families" have been described in medical writings. This suggests, but does not prove, that at least in certain cases, stomach cancer (or a predisposition for it) is inherited.

Mexicans, fiercely independent, are not likely to change their attitude.

But Mexico is a key country in Latin America, a possible showcase for what Kennedy's Alliance for Progress can do, and a member of the recessed 18-nation disarmament conference in Geneva, so there are other things in common to be discussed.

This city of five million turned out massive throngs along the parade route from the airport to Lopez Mateos' offices at Los Pinos.

The route wound past nondescript neighborhoods of tumbledown shops, new low-cost housing, past a dramatic view of the 16th century National Cathedral, built by Cortez after the Spaniards conquered the Aztecs, through Avenida Juarez past the Latin-American Tower, tallest skyscraper in Latin America, and into the famed tree-lined Paseo de la Reforma and its gilts monument of the Angel of Independence.

The President and Rusk were still in animated conversation as they left the White House. Rusk made the helicopter flight to the airport to see the Kennedys off, but did not fly south.

Road Back Tortuous, Difficult

Alcoholic Can Be Assisted By Medicine, Psychology

Science has yet to unravel the dark mystery which lies in the body or in the soul of an alcoholic, demanding drink. But small advances in knowledge are being made. This last in a series describing the modern attack on alcoholism reports these advances and lists some helpful do's and don'ts.

By ALTON BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Writer

At 3 a.m., in a fuzzy voice, the young man telephoned a doctor he'd never met, asking for an appointment.

He burst into the office early in the morning, demanding "some of those pills to keep me from drinking. I've got to stay sober the next few days—very important."

There is an antidrinking drug, but it's no magic powder-in-the-coffee affair.

This drug is disulfiram (trade-name antabuse). It is completely harmless, until a person drinks any alcohol. Then he becomes violently ill.

It acts as a chemical fence reinforcing the alcoholic's determination not to drink. It must be prescribed and guided by a physician, for otherwise reactions could be disastrous. The alcoholic must know that he's taking it, and what it will do. It wasn't the easy answer for the young man, except so far as it marked a start toward real desire to stop drinking.

The road back from alcoholism is tortuous and difficult, but much can be done medically and psychologically, explains Dr. Ruth Fox, medical director of the National Council on Alcoholism.

A first step is restoration of good health and diet. The alcoholic often has liver, nerve or other damage.

He may need hospital care for a time. Tranquillizing drugs now can help him sleep, or handle mood swings and anxiety.

Clergymen increasingly are helping alcoholics find and follow useful, sober new lives.

Hypnosis, in the hands of trained physicians, can assist alcoholics to relax and handle tensions, Dr. Fox says.

All treatments, the physician points out, have a common goal: Understanding and reinforcing the need for total abstinenece, of life without drink.

The downfall of the alcoholic has been blamed on faulty or lazy glands, or lack of certain vitamins, and other biochemical upsets. But simply replacing the missing chemicals has proved disappointing in treating or preventing alcoholism, Dr. Fox says.

Social and family attitudes are still roadblocks in dealing with alcoholism, says Mrs. Marty Mann, executive director of the National Council on Alcoholism.

"Too many people still attach a social stigma to alcoholism, as was once done with epilepsy and TB. There are still people in key places who don't recognize it as a sickness."

For guidance of wives, husbands and children of alcoholics, Mrs. Mann and other authorities list some do's and don'ts:

Don't plead, don't censure, don't nag the alcoholic.

And when the alcoholic slips, don't tearfully exclaim, "If you loved me, you wouldn't do this to me." The alcoholic usually feels enough remorse and guilt already.

Don't try to hide liquor or take it away, or cut off his money. Don't just get angry. Don't call him a moral weakling.

Do try to understand alcoholism as a sickness, and discuss it and any episodes calmly. Do understand the alcoholic is not unlike the diabetic to whom sugar is a poison.

Do set teen-agers a good example.

Library Gets New Histories On Fight For Independence

Appropriate for reading over the July 4th holiday are three new histories at the Carnegie Public Library, throwing light on the American Revolution launched by the Declaration of Independence.

Miss Frances Jones, librarian, said "The Cowpens Guilford Courthouse Campaign," by Burke Davis, recounts a wild chase between the British and the Americans in North Carolina; a skirmish led directly to "The Victory at Yorktown," written by Donald Barr Chidsey, has detective story pace, and the revolution on the frontier is the subject of "The Violent Years." Patricia Jahns, the author, stars Simon Kenton was was with Clarke at Kaskaskia. This is especially interesting for Ohioans since Kenton was prominent in settling many places in western Ohio from Cincinnati to Urbana to Sandusky.

Closely allied to the Fourth in our history was the period of Lincoln, and there are two new books on this great hero: "Lincoln, a Contemporary Portrait," edited by Allan Nevins and Irving Stone, and "Lincoln and the Emporers," by A. R. Tyrnauer, Hungarian journalist.

Typifying the development of American democracy in the cities is a biography of a famous politician, grandfather to President Kennedy. In "Honey Fitz," John Cutler describes in intimate detail the methods of the ward politician who became mayor of Boston for two terms—John F. Fitzgerald.

The war "to make the world safe for democracy," though fought in Europe, was another step in this nation's continuing struggle for freedom. Chief among the battles of World War II is "The First Battle of the Marne." The author, Robert Asprey, served many years with the Marines and was a Fulbright Fellow at Oxford.

Today America battles in the cold war are of another type:

"The Little Toy Dog," a courageous story of Capt. John McKone and Freeman Olmstead, two RB-47 flyers shot down and imprisoned by the Russians, is told by a great reporter, William L. White. The infiltration of communism into the U.S. recounts still another phase. It is William F. Buckley's review of the House Un-American Activities Committee.

One of America's prize-winning novelists also is represented on this week's new bookshelf. "The Reivers," which William Faulkner calls a reminiscence, reverts back to the period of his tale, "The Sanctuary." It is amusing and a real slice of life in the era of 1905 in the Deep South.

For those who prefer the medium of biography, the library recommends for good reading "My Self and I," by Constance Newlund, and "Doctor Hap," struggles of a young couple in the Alaskan wilderness by Clara Burke.

Town Marshal Killed In Gun Spree With Thief

BELLEFONTAINE, Ohio (AP) —The town marshal of nearby West Liberty died in a shooting spree with a car thief early today.

Sheriff's deputies identified the marshal as Sherman Ricketts, in his 50s.

The thief who was identified as Earl R. Jacobs, was wounded and was undergoing surgery in Mary Rutan Hospital here.

Sheriff's deputies said Ricketts came upon the thief as he was switching license plates on a car believed stolen from Michigan. The thief grabbed a gun from the seat of the car and fired at Ricketts.

The marshal fired back, and in the exchange of shots, Ricketts was struck fatally and the thief was wounded, deputies said.

Sheriff's deputies were notified and captured the thief, who was unable to flee.

Jacobs, believed to be an ex-convict on parole from Michigan, signed a confession in the affiar, deputies said.

Officials said a search for another man was conducted for a time, but it was later believed no one else was involved in the shootings.

West Liberty is a village of about 1,400 located south of here.

SPRINGFIELD, Ohio (AP) — Fifteen cars of an Indianapolis-bound New York Central freight train were derailed Thursday about a half-mile west of nearby New Carlisle. There were no injuries.

New Envoys To Moscow, Paris Seen

WASHINGTON (AP)—Authoritative sources report a diplomatic shuffle in the works. Two likely results: new U.S. ambassadors in Moscow and Paris.

Here's how the realignment is expected to take place:

Llewellyn E. Thompson, ambassador to Moscow, leaves his post toward the end of next month. His replacement: Foy D. Kohler, assistant secretary of state for European affairs.

Thompson returns to Washington, taking over from Charles E. (Chip) Bohlen as special assistant to the secretary for Soviet affairs. Bohlen, in turn, goes to Paris, replacing James M. Gavin as ambassador.

There has been no decision on a replacement for Kohler as head of the Bureau of European Affairs or on what will happen to Gavin, a retired lieutenant general in his first diplomatic post.

The changes reportedly are subject to approval by Secretary of State Dean Rusk who returned Thursday night after a 10-day tour of Western Europe.

Bohlen and Thompson are career ambassadors, the highest rank in the foreign service. Kohler is in charge of the department's task force on Berlin and chairman of the ambassadorial steering group discussing Allied policy on the divided German city.

Vet Who Willed U.S. $14,000 Found Dead

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—A Spanish-American war veteran, who willed his $14,000 savings to the federal government, was found dead Thursday in his trailer home.

"The government has been good to me, and I'm giving the money back," Marc Antony, 92, said when he made the request earlier this year. Antony explained he lived frugally and was able to save almost all the pension money he received as a veteran.

U.S. Traffic Deaths Reported Up In May

CHICAGO (AP) — Deaths in automobile traffic rose in May, the National Safety Council reported Thursday, but the increase matched the rise in travel volume.

Deaths totaled 3,160, a 1 per cent increase over the 3,130 in May 1961. May was the seventh month in a row to show a rise or no change from the corresponding month a year earlier.

For the first five months of 1962 there were 14,520 traffic deaths, up 5 per cent from 13,830 in the comparable months of last year.

Although deaths increased 5 per cent, the amount of travel rose by an identical percentage. The resulting death rate for the period was 4.8 fatalities for each 100 million miles traveled. This was unchanged from the rate at the end of May 1961.

Volunteer Firemen Rush To Save Circus

DAYTON, Ohio (AP)—The volunteer fire department at nearby Vandalia had to come to the rescue Thursday of a circus it was sponsoring to raise money.

The 91-degree temperature and low water pressure combined to put the traveling show's hippopotamus in a sour mood. The firemen, however, rolled out the tank trucks, the hippo had its water and the show went on.

Postmaster To Retire

CHARDON, Ohio (AP) — Mrs. Leita Tuttle, postmistress here since 1934, will retire Saturday and plans to "just relax for a while." She was the first woman to serve as chairman of a county Democratic organization in Ohio. She was elected chairman of the Geauga County Democratic organization in the early 1930s and served until her appointment as postmistress.

CINCINNATI (AP) — The Ohio Civil Rights Commission was to conduct a public hearing here today on the extent and effect of racial and religious discrimination in Hamilton and Butler Counties. Leonard D. Slutz, commissioner from Cincinnati, was scheduled to conduct the hearing, which winds up the commission's current housing research program.

Road Back Tortuous, Difficult

Alcoholic Can Be Assisted By Medicine, Psychology

Science has yet to unravel the dark mystery which lies in the body or in the soul of an alcoholic, demanding drink. But small advances in knowledge are being made. This last in a series describing the modern attack on alcoholism reports these advances and lists some helpful do's and don'ts.

By ALTON BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Writer

At 3 a.m., in a fuzzy voice, the young man telephoned a doctor he'd never met, asking for an appointment.

He burst into the office early in the morning, demanding "some of those pills to keep me from drinking. I've got to stay sober the next few days—very important."

There is an antidrinking drug, but it's no magic powder-in-the-coffee affair.

This drug is disulfiram (tradename antabuse). It is completely harmless, until a person drinks any alcohol. Then he becomes violently ill.

It acts as a chemical fence reinforcing the alcoholic's determination not to drink. It must be prescribed and guided by a physician, for otherwise reactions could be disastrous. The alcoholic must know that he's taking it, and what it will do. It wasn't the easy answer for the young man, except so far as it marked a start toward real desire to stop drinking.

The road back from alcoholism is tortuous and difficult, but much can be done medically and psychologically, explains Dr. Ruth Fox, medical director of the National Council on Alcoholism.

A first step is restoration of good health and diet. The alcoholic often has liver, nerve or other damage.

He may need hospital care for a time. Tranquillizing drugs now can help him sleep, or handle mood swings and anxiety.

Clergymen increasingly are helping alcoholics find and follow useful, sober new lives.

Hypnosis, in the hands of trained physicians, can assist alcoholics to relax and handle tensions, Dr. Fox says.

All treatments, the physician points out, have a common goal: Understanding and reinforcing the need for total abstinence, of life without drink.

The downfall of the alcoholic has been blamed on faulty or lazy glands, or lack of certain vitamins, and other biochemical upsets. But simply replacing the missing chemicals has proved disappointing in treating or preventing alcoholism, Dr. Fox says.

Social and family attitudes are still roadblocks in dealing with alcoholism, says Mrs. Marty Mann, executive director of the National Council on Alcoholism.

"Too many people still attach a social stigma to alcoholism, as was once done with epilepsy and TB. There are still people in key places who don't recognize it as a sickness."

For guidance of wives, husbands and children of alcoholics, Mrs. Mann and other authorities list some do's and don'ts:

Don't plead, don't censure, don't nag the alcoholic.

And when the alcoholic slips, don't tearfully exclaim, "If you loved me, you wouldn't do this to me." The alcoholic usually feels enough remorse and guilt already.

Don't try to hide liquor or take it away, or cut off his money. Don't just get angry. Don't call him a moral weakling.

Do try to understand alcoholism as a sickness, and discuss it and any episodes calmly. Do understand the alcoholic is not unlike the diabetic to whom sugar is a poison.

Do set teen-agers a good example.

Library Gets New Histories On Fight For Independence

Appropriate for reading over the July 4th holiday are three new histories at the Carnegie Public Library, throwing light on the American Revolution launched by the Declaration of Independence.

Miss Frances Jones, librarian, said "The Cowpens Guilford Courthouse Campaign," by Burke Davis, recounts a wild chase between the British and the Americans in North Carolina; a skirmish led directly to "The Victory at Yorktown," written by Donald Barr Chidsey, has detective story pace, and the revolution on the frontier is the subject of "The Violent Years." Patricia Jahns, the author, stars Simon Kenton was was with Clarke at Kaskaskia. This is especially interesting for Ohioans since Kenton was prominent in settling many places in western Ohio from Cincinnati to Urbana to Sandusky.

Closely allied to the Fourth in our history was the period of Lincoln, and there are two new books on this great hero: "Lincoln, a Contemporary Portrait," edited by Allan Nevins and Irving Stone, and "Lincoln and the Emporers," by A. R. Tyrnauer, Hungarian journalist.

Typifying the development of American democracy in the cities is a biography of a famous politician, grandfather to President Kennedy. In "Honey Fitz," John Cutler describes in intimate detail the methods of the ward politician who became mayor of Boston for two terms—John F. Fitzgerald.

The war "to make the world safe for democracy," though fought in Europe, was another step in this nation's continuing struggle for freedom. Chief among the battles of World War II is "The First Battle of the Marne." The author, Robert Asprey, served many years with the Marines and was a Fulbright Fellow at Oxford.

Today America battles in the cold war are of another type:

"The Little Toy Dog," a courageous story of Capt. John McKone and Freeman Olmstead, two RB-47 flyers shot down and imprisoned by the Russians, is told by a great reporter, William L. White. The infiltration of communism into the U.S. recounts still another phase. It is William F. Buckley's review of the House Un-American Activities Committee.

One of America's prize-winning novelists also is represented on this week's new bookshelf. "The Reivers," which William Faulkner calls a reminiscence, reverts back to the period of his tale, "The Sanctuary." It is amusing and a real slice of life in the era of 1905 in the Deep South.

For those who prefer the medium of biography, the library recommends for good reading "My Self and I," by Constance Newlund, and "Doctor Hap," struggles of a young couple in the Alaskan wilderness by Clara Burke.

Town Marshal Killed In Gun Spree With Thief

BELLEFONTAINE, Ohio (AP) —The town marshal of nearby West Liberty died in a shooting spree with a car thief early today.

Sheriff's deputies identified the marshal as Sherman Ricketts, in his 50s.

The thief who was identified as Earl R. Jacobs, was wounded and was undergoing surgery in Mary Rutan Hospital here.

Sheriff's deputies said Ricketts came upon the thief as he was switching license plates on a car believed stolen from Michigan. The thief grabbed a gun from the seat of the car and fired at Ricketts.

The marshal fired back, and in the exchange of shots, Ricketts was struck fatally and the thief was wounded, deputies said.

Sheriff's deputies were notified and captured the thief, who was unable to flee.

Jacobs, believed to be an ex-convict on parole from Michigan, signed a confession in the affiar, deputies said.

Officials said a search for another man was conducted for a time, but it was later believed no one else was involved in the shootings.

West Liberty is a village of about 1,400 located south of here.

First Loan To Ohio Firm Granted By ARA

GREENFIELD, Ohio (AP)—Officials here say the Collins Packing Co. of Greenfield has been granted the first loan to an Ohio firm by the federal Area Redevelopment Administration.

Word was received from the office of Sen. Frank J. Lausche that the ARA has approved a $212,700 loan to the company to help finance a $327,300 plant expansion program. The expansion is expected to create 50 to 65 new jobs.

To Continue Studies

OXFORD, Ohio (AP) — One-third of Miami University's June 1962 graduates are planning to continue their studies, Provost Charles Ray Wilson reports. Wilson said a survey of the 824 graduates showed 277 — or 33.6 per cent — intend to go to graduate and professional schools.

Out Of The Air

By HAL HUMPHREY

Jim Backus Groans For Good Old Days

"I've just packed my dark blue bar mitzvah suit and Henny, and I'm off to New York, and don't ask me why I'm working this summer," says Jim Backus. Next Tuesday, Jim becomes host of "Talent Scouts," the old Arthur Godfrey utility show which CBS has used profitably since 1948. The "Henny" mentioned is Jim's wife, who is just going along to pour the martinis. "Standards have changed since I was a kid. I remember when it was considered a virtue to have a job in the summer, but now my friends get sore," moans old timer Jim.

Hal Humphrey

"THEY GET sore?"

"Sure. Don't you know it's gauche to work in the summer, especially in New York? Everybody is supposed to get out of New York in the summer. I tell you, values aren't the same any more."

"Give me another example."

"Well, it used to show character if you were thrifty. Now your tax man says, 'Spend, man, get out and spend so we can write it off.' I said, 'Fine, I'll hire a gardener.' But my tax man says, 'Don't be a jerk, you can't write off a gardener."

JIM WAS in Chicago recently and reports a sad decline in values there, too.

"I was crossing the Chicago River and saw a string of boats decorated in bright bunting with streams of water playing across their bows from the fireboats. I thought maybe President Kennedy was in town, but you know who it was? Bennett Cerf!"

Some of Jim's sorehead friends have accused him of taking the summer "Talent Scouts" job as a hedge against his declining years.

"They figure it's like old-age insurance for me to say a few encouraging words to those kids trying to get their big break in show business. If any one of them happens to hit, I can live off him the rest of my life," Jim says, dejectedly.

"WHAT'S WRONG with that?"

"Are you kidding? The way my luck runs, some kid will get up and do Mr. Magoo and I'll be out of work."

Jim got a fat part for his Magoo cartoon character before he left for New York. UPA Pictures, Inc., just produced a cartoon version of Charles Dickens' "Christmas Carol" for airing on NBC next Dec. 18. Magoo becomes Ebenezer Scrooge.

If the producers of "Talent Scouts" run out of young hopefuls this summer, Jim knows where there is a reservoir of fantastic talent.

"I made the mistake of telling my friends at the Riviera Club where I play golf that I was hosting this show. Generally I'm looked down on there. The members aren't too impressed with actors, who they refer to as 'theatricals.' But now I'm a big man."

"ONE MEMBER, who refused to read because it makes his lips tired, subtly informs me his wife's sister plays the accordion 'rather well.'

"I got another guy who never spoke to me before, and suddenly he's telling me all about an eccentric uncle who hits himself on the head with a hammer to the tune of 'Nearer My God to Thee.' For a finish, he knocks his teeth out."

"What other offers have you had?" I ask.

"The waiter I never could find comes up to me and says he leads a combo on his night off, and he offers to bring it and play for me any time," Jim replies, disgustedly.

-:-

"AND WHAT did you tell him?"

"I said, 'Where were you last New Year's Eve when I needed you?' "

As Jim says, values aren't what they used to be when we were kids.

Pay TV Due Big Test In Connecticut

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP)—Pay television's biggest test so far will be seen tonight in about 200 homes in Hartford and within a 15-mile radius.

RKO Phonevision will broadcast the program over WHCT (Channel 18) of Hartford.

RKO Phonevision and the Zenith Radio Corp. are partners in the three-year-old experiment—a $10 million venture in competition with movie theaters and possibly in competition with conventional broadcasters.

Advertising agencies, which support much of free television, are vitally involved in whether the pay television without commercials clicks with the public.

RKO Phonevision has told the Federal Communications Commission, which permitted its venture, that paid television would not compete with free television because it would not be airing the same shows.

Tonight's program has an introduction featuring remarks by Newton Minow, chairman of the Federal Communications Commission, and several Connecticut political figures.

Then will come "Sunrise at Campobello," a movie that already has played in Hartford, and "Midsummer Night's Dream" a foreign-made film version of Shakespeare's comedy played by puppets, which has not been shown in Hartford movie houses or on television.

The set owner's tab for the show is $1, on top of preliminary costs. A subscriber pays $10 for installation of an electric decoder to get the program from WHCT, an ultra-high frequency station. A subscriber also will have to pay a rental charge of 75 cents a week for the decoder which is a small box on top of the television set that makes sense out of the station's signals that are scrambled so that non-payers can't watch the program for free. The weekly fee, which includes all servicing, will not be charged until October.

Tonight's largest over-the-air test of pay-television comes after several trials of closed-circuit paid television. Closed-circuit television requires extensive wiring, and is much more costly than the over-the-air system being inaugurated here.

Birthday Is Sunday

Wellsville Man's 93

William J. E. Anderson, 241 Highland Ave., Wellsville, will observe his 93rd birthday anniversary Sunday at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Ruth Hickey, with whom he resides. He reads one of the many congratulatory cards he has received.

He was born June 30, 1869, in Wellsville, where he attended the public schools and Josey's Church, an old-time congregational church once located at 4th and Commerce Sts.

A former machinst, he worked for the Pennsylvania Railroad Co. and then was employed for 60 years with the Stevenson Co., from which he retired in 1952.

He was councilman of the First Ward for several years around 1910 and is a past member of the Eagles Lodge.

An outdoors sportsman, he hunted until he was 85. He still reads a good deal and goes for short walks.

Wellsville K. Of C. To Honor Retiring Officers At Dinner

Over 100 are expected to attend a dinner of the Wellsville Knights of Columbus Council Saturday night at 7 in the K of C Hall, with out-going officers to be honored.

Wives of members will be guests and John Trainer, council activities chairman, is in charge of arrangements.

At the council's meeting Tuesday night, the program featured a talk by Dan Corbisello, Wellsville High School student, who attended a youth program June 11-16 at Xavier University in Cincinnati. The council has sponsored a student to the program for the past 10 years.

George Prokop reported on progress of plans for the annual St. Rocco festival Aug. 12-18 at Central Park.

Plans are being made for a district third degree meeting July 29, with the place to be announced by Lou McKenna of Lisbon, district deputy.

Following business, the Desmond Holding Club comprised of K.C. members operating under a separate charter elected officers.

They include James McPeak, president; Prokop, Anthony Cataldo and John Kozora, trustees; Andrew Lynn, secretary - treasurer; Robert Graham, planning chairman, and Andrew Holowaty and Russell Corsello, planning co-chairmen.

Next meeting is Tuesday night when McPeak, new grand knight, will assume duties.

Data Needed In Water Plan

A Lawrenceville citizens' group seeking central water and sewage facilities was told Thursday night that additional information on statistical phases of the proposal is needed before further progress can be made.

Joseph M. Bendot, chief engineer of Weirton Steel Co., advised the group that data on the community's population, number of homes and wells, and boundaries of the proposed district to be served must be compiled.

The group met in the Grandview School to continue a discussion on the proposal to have central water and sewage systems installed. Lawrenceville was declared a Public Service District last month by Hancock County Commissioners, the first step towards implementing the plan.

Bendot is first vice president of the Hancock County Planning Commission.

Elwood Fox, a two-year trustee of the Public Service District, presided. Most other officers were unable to attend. No date was set for the next meeting.

City Officers Back Holiday Safety Drive

The East Liverpool police department will co-operate in a "Lights On" highway safety campaign over the July 4th holiday, Capt. Robert Pyle, acting chief, said today.

The statewide campaign is sponsored by the Ohio Department of Highway Safety. Every motorist on Ohio highways will be asked to drive with his headlights on if traveling between 6 p. m. Tuesday and a half-hour before sunrise Wednesday to remind himself and everyone else on the road to use particular care in the holiday rush, Capt. Pyle explained.

The campaign was worked out by Grant Keys, state director of highway safety, who said his department estimates as many as 10 persons will die and 300 may be injured in the holiday period from 6 p. m. Tuesday to midnight Wednesday.

The "Lights On" drive has been used on several holidays in the past to emphasize the need for safe driving.

Keys said law enforcement departments throughout Ohio will use all available men to help control traffic. Some departments will use auxiliary forces and there will be selective special coverage at "critical areas," he added.

But primarily, it is up to individual drivers to hold down the death toll, he added.

"There is no substitute for careful and skillful driving," Keys commented.

Out Of The Air

By HAL HUMPHREY

Jim Backus Groans For Good Old Days

"I've just packed my dark blue bar mitzvah suit and Henny, and I'm off to New York, and don't ask me why I'm working this summer," says Jim Backus. Next Tuesday, Jim becomes host of "Talent Scouts," the old Arthur Godfrey utility show which CBS has used profitably since 1948. The "Henny" mentioned is Jim's wife, who is just going along to pour the martinis. "Standards have changed since I was a kid. I remember when it was considered a virtue to have a job in the summer, but now my friends get sore," moans old timer Jim.

Hal Humphrey

"THEY GET sore?"

"Sure. Don't you know it's gauche to work in the summer, especially in New York? Everybody is supposed to get out of New York in the summer. I tell you, values aren't the same any more."

"Give me another example."

"Well, it used to show character if you were thrifty. Now your tax man says, 'Spend, man, get out and spend so we can write it off.' I said, 'Fine, I'll hire a gardener.' But my tax man says, 'Don't be a jerk, you can't write off a gardener.'"

JIM WAS in Chicago recently and reports a sad decline in values there, too.

"I was crossing the Chicago River and saw a string of boats decorated in bright bunting with streams of water playing across their bows from the fireboats. I thought maybe President Kennedy was in town, but you know who it was? Bennett Cerf!"

Some of Jim's sorehead friends have accused him of taking the summer "Talent Scouts" job as a hedge against his declining years.

"They figure it's like old-age insurance for me to say a few encouraging words to those kids trying to get their big break in show business. If any one of them happens to hit, I can live off him the rest of my life," Jim says, dejectedly.

-:-

"WHAT'S WRONG with that?"

"Are you kidding? The way my luck runs, some kid will get up and do Mr. Magoo and I'll be out of work."

Jim got a fat part for his Magoo cartoon character before he left for New York. UPA Pictures, Inc., just produced a cartoon version of Charles Dickens' "Christmas Carol" for airing on NBC next Dec. 18. Magoo becomes Ebenezer Scrooge.

If the producers of "Talent Scouts" run out of young hopefuls this summer, Jim knows where there is a reservoir of fantastic talent.

"I made the mistake of telling my friends at the Riviera Club where I play golf that I was hosting this show. Generally I'm looked down on there. The members aren't too impressed with actors, who they refer to as 'theatricals.' But now I'm a big man."

"ONE MEMBER, who refused to read because it makes his lips tired, subtly informs me his wife's sister plays the accordion 'rather well.'

"I got another guy who never spoke to me before, and suddenly he's telling me all about an eccentric uncle who hits himself on the head with a hammer to the tune of 'Nearer My God to Thee.' For a finish, he knocks his teeth out."

"What other offers have you had?" I ask.

"The waiter I never could find comes up to me and says he leads a combo on his night off, and he offers to bring it and play for me any time," Jim replies, disgustedly.

-:-

"AND WHAT did you tell him?"

"I said, 'Where were you last New Year's Eve when I needed you?'"

As Jim says, values aren't what they used to be when we were kids.

Pay TV Due Big Test In Connecticut

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP)—Pay television's biggest test so far will be seen tonight in about 200 homes in Hartford and within a 15-mile radius.

RKO Phonevision will broadcast the program over WHCT (Channel 18) of Hartford.

RKO Phonevision and the Zenith Radio Corp. are partners in the three-year-old experiment—a $10 million venture in competition with movie theaters and possibly in competition with conventional broadcasters.

Advertising agencies, which support much of free television, are vitally involved in whether the pay television without commercials clicks with the public.

RKO Phonevision has told the Federal Communications Commission, which permitted its venture, that paid television would not compete with free television because it would not be airing the same shows.

Tonight's program has an introduction featuring remarks by Newton Minow, chairman of the Federal Communications Commission, and several Connecticut political figures.

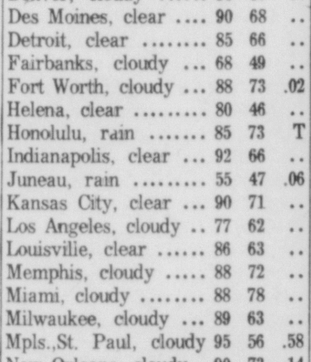

Then will come "Sunrise at Campobello," a movie that already has played in Hartford, and "Midsummer Night's Dream" a foreign-made film version of Shakespeare's comedy played by puppets, which has not been shown in Hartford movie houses or on television.

The set owner's tab for the show is $1, on top of preliminary costs. A subscriber pays $10 for installation of an electric decoder to get the program from WHCT, an ultra-high frequency station. A subscriber also will have to pay a rental charge of 75 cents a week for the decoder which is a small box on top of the television set that makes sense out of the station's signals that are scrambled so that non-payers can't watch the program for free. The weekly fee, which includes all servicing, will not be charged until October.

Tonight's largest over-the-air test of pay-television comes after several trials of closed-circuit paid television. Closed-circuit television requires extensive wiring, and is much more costly than the over-the-air system being inaugurated here.

New Ohio Commercial Code Will Go Into Effect Sunday

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Sunday isn't supposed to be a business day in Ohio, but next Sunday will be a milestone in the history of Ohio business.

Sunday is the day the state's new uniform commercial code goes into effect.

Lawyers generally say this is not a matter for any great dismay or rejoicing on the part of the general public. In fact, they say, hardly anyone in the consuming public will be aware of it.

But it is important to Ohio's retailers, financial institutions — and the lawyers.

One of the biggest effects will be in the office of Secretary of State Ted W. Brown, where an entire division is being set up to handle the new work. Under certain circumstances, the uniform code makes Brown a sort of "state recorder" for commercial documents.

Ohio is one of 18 states which has adopted the uniform code designed, eventually, to make commercial transactions uniform across the nation. Generally, the aim of the new law, which replaces 35 to 40 other so-called uniform acts, is to simplify commercial transactions and to make it easier for businessmen doing business across county and state lines.

Brown estimates commercial code filing will amount to 100,000 to 150,000 documents a year from the very start.

In some cases, it will be necessary for attorneys and business people to file so - called commercial papers with both the secretary of state and with the recorder in the county in which a transaction is consummated. Those details are for the lawyers, however, and will not affect the average man.

The 1961 legislature adopted the commercial code but forgot one important thing. It didn't give the secretary of state any money to administer it. He went to the State Emergency Board for $37,000 to get the operation off the ground for the last six months of this year. Eventually, Brown expects that fees provided in the new law will make the new operation self-sustaining.

Five Lions received certificates for outstanding work.

Recipients were Jerry D'Angelo, "Lion of the Year;" Anthony Bernardi, for directing the club's successful minstrel, and John Abrams and Sayre Graham for outstanding work in the community. The certificates were presented by Robert Cain.

Walter L. Jordan, retiring president, presented a certificate from Ed Queen of Fairmont, West Virginia district governor, to Tom Wehner for outstanding service as club secretary the past year. The group presented a gift to Jordan.

Mrs. Lillian Wagner of Georgetown gave novelty piano selections and Charles Laughley sang solos. There was group singing with Bernardi leading.

Dinner was served 36 by members of Crescent Chapter 49, Order of Eastern Star. Cain was program chairman, assisted by Graham and Abrams.

The question as to whether one can travel faster on roller skates or on ice skates depends mainly on the distance traveled. For fairly short distances, up to one mile, ice skates are faster. For longer distances, such as two miles or five miles, roller skates are faster because they require less stamina to maintain speed.

Midland Man Fined In Chester Hearing

Kermit R. Holland, 92 Hillcrest Manor, pleaded innocent to the charge filed with Hancock County Circuit Court in September.

Thelma Gregory, 516 Virginia Ave., Chester, was fined $10 and costs for driving the wrong way on 2nd St. Cited Monday by Police Chief Harold Davis, she pleaded guilty.

Water Scalds Local Woman

A North Side housewife scalded by water from a faucet was among two adults and five children treated at City Hospital Thursday after a variety of minor mishaps.

Mrs. Joyce McCready, 1603 Smithfield St., suffered first degree scalds of the legs. Wife of Richard McCready, she was released after treatment about 3 p. m.

Richard Bissell of Woodbine Ave., Gardendale, was treated at 7:55 p. m. for a puncture wound of the left middle finger suffered while working with an electric drill.

Bernard Adkins Jr., 4, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Adkins, 1027 Hazel St., suffered a laceration of the left index finger on a knife. He was treated at 8:45.

Gary Headley, 14, step-son of Emil Dicember of Box 7, Smiths Ferry, was treated at 9 p. m. for an injury to the right arm suffered when hit by a baseball at home.

Clark Waters, 4, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Waters, 2025 Harvey Ave., suffered a laceration of the left lower arm on a vase at home. He was treated at 9:20.

Kimberly Edwards, 2, daughter of Charles Edwards, 829 Lincoln Ave., lacerated her tongue in a fall. She also was treated last night.

Kathleen Brushon, 7, daughter of Robert Brushon of Grand River, was treated yesterday for a puncture wound of the right knee suffered when a metal gate closed on her.

Delicious and quickly - prepared appetizer: canned drained pimiento garnished with a criss-cross of anchovy filets and served on crisp salad greens. This is a pantry shelf idea that you might like to use when unexpected company comes. Good to accompany this first course — olive oil, wine vinegar, French bread or hard rolls and sweet butter.

You can make a delightful summer - style tomato sauce for pasta, fish, meat, poultry or eggs. Just cook thin onion strips with cut-up fresh tomatoes in olive oil and season with salt and pepper. Chopped parsley, sliced mushrooms and green pepper strips may be added to give extra flavor.

Bill Laughlin Bows Out . . .

A brilliant career in basketball as a player and then later as a coach ended this week when Bill Laughlin, who learned the game at East Liverpool High, stepped down as head coach at Washington, Pa.

His resignation completed a coaching career at Wash High spanning 16 years. In those 16 years, Laughlin established himself as a coaching genius in the tough WPIAL, where several records made by his teams continue to stand the test of time.

He returned to Washington in 1946, the same town where he had been a college standout at Washington & Jefferson. Before that Laughlin was one of East Liverpool High's all-time cage stars.

He coached at East Liverpool for five seasons, from 1938-1943, showing only one losing campaign.

Around the WPIAL, Bill must stand close to the top in view of his records at Washington.

In 16 years his squads won 262 games and lost only 94.

For 10 consecutive seasons his teams were section champions and he gained the WPIAL finals twice, but never won it.

A record that still remains a Class A mark in the WPIAL shows Washington High, during that period of 10 successive titles, winning 74 consecutive section games. The long streak started late in the 1948-49 season and didn't end until January of 1956.

Bill also has the distinction of only having one losing season in the Pennsylvania city.

While he has given up his coaching duties, Bill will remain as a teacher at the high school. His successor to the coaching job is Herbert Johnson, who was Laughlin's assistant at Wash High from 1956.

Ashcroft Works Out With Mets . . .

"HOW'S it feel to wear a major league uniform?" Rich Ashcroft was asked. "Pretty good; it feels awfully nice," he replied.

Ashcroft, the former South Side star who packs quite a wallop with a baseball bat, worked out Tuesday and Wednesday with the New York Mets at Forbes Field.

The Mets must have liked what they saw since they informed Ashcroft that he might be given another tryout at New York when the club returns from the West Coast.

Ashcroft also chatted quite awhile with Casey Stengel. "I got quite a thrill talking to him," Rich said.

The first sacker, who is drawing the attention of major league scouts, turned down an offer Wednesday from the Cleveland Indians. Cleveland wanted to sign Rich for a substantial bonus. We can't blame him for waiting, maybe something better will come along.

RICH ASHCROFT

Meanwhile, he will continue play for the J & L Steel Co. team and the local East Liverpool Merchants.

Burbick Paced Navy . . .

CRAIG BURBICK

CRAIG BURBICK is home from the Naval Academy and we'll bet 10-to-1 that he brought his golf clubs with him.

The clubs were used very well on opponents of the Navy golf team this past season, where the former Potter golf star played as No. 1 man most of the time.

He defeated seven of 12 opponents in leading the Navy golfers to a respectable 8-4 record. That included a victory over Army.

Craig just missed by a stroke of qualifying for the NCAA finals at Duke University two weeks ago, but before that showed some outstanding rounds of golf for the Navy squad.

In the Eastern College Athletic Conference's fall tourney last October at Farmingdale, N. Y., he fired a 77 to tie for individual low on the Navy squad and led his team to the runnerup spot behind Syracuse.

Navy golf coach Bob Williams rates Burbick as one of the outstanding golfers to perform at Annapolis. The East Liverpool lad still has two more years of competition remaining with the Midshipmen.

Minor Injury Sidelines Allen . . .

BERNIE ALLEN, who hasn't missed a game as the Minnesota Twins second baseman since a bout with the flu in late April, was sidelined Thursday at New York with a sore right shoulder.

Allen was taken out of the game Wednesday afternoon after six innings with the injury and didn't play yesterday. He is expected to be back in the lineup tonight when the Twins visit Washington.

The East Liverpool lad is maintaining a batting average around the .250 mark.

Montgomery Whiffs 15, Nears Little Loop Mark

Bill Montgomery, an 11-year-old righthander, sent Little League officials looking through the record books after fanning 15 batters in pitching Golden Star to a 17-2 win over Veteran Plate Glass Thursday.

Beside the 15 strikeouts, Montgomery had three assists as he figured in all of the 18 putouts that go with a six-inning Little League game. League officials are not certain whether or not the 15 strikeouts becomes a record but Montgomery turned in a baseball oddity by taking part in all of the 18 putouts with his three assists.

He gave up three hits to Veteran Plate Glass batters.

The American Division of the Little League race tightened up Thursday when the Travelers Hotel nine upset league-leading Milliron's, 10-6, and second place Golden Star moved into a near tie.

The season is in its final days and Milliron's show a 5-2 mark while Golden Star holds a 6-3 record. Tonight Milliron's meet Veteran Plate Glass.

Bob Sims pounded out a triple and two singles to lead Travelers' 11-hit attack. The hotel nine trailed 6-5 going into the last of the sixth but came up with five big runs.

Burbick's posted a 15-10 victory over McBurney's which started next year's outfit. Pat Clutter banged out two hits and Berhar doubled for the winners.

Yanks Whip Twins, Jump Into Second

By JIM HACKLEMAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

M & M Boys Homer; LA Routs Bosox

When it comes to cutting the bad guys off at the pass, the New York Yankees call on Marshall (The Sheriff) Bridges, one of the fastest guns in the American League.

He halted another uprising Thursday as the Yankees beat Minnesota 4-2 and leap-frogged into second place. The left-handed fireballer came in with the bases filled and two runs across in the eighth inning, fanned Don Mincher for the third out, then held the Twins in the ninth.

It was the 22nd appearance of the season for Bridges, 31, a short-stint specialist who has been a valuable replacement for the injured southpaw relief star, Luis Arroyo. Bridges' latest performance saved a victory for Bill Stafford, who was supported by homer help from Roger Maris and Mickey Mantle.

By winning, the Yankees took over the runnerup spot in a virtual deadlock with Minnesota and Los Angeles—all 1½ games behind Cleveland. New York has a three-percentage-point edge on the Angels, who in turn are three points ahead of the Twins.

The Angels bombed Boston 19-7, Baltimore completed a three-game sweep of Chicago on Steve Barber's shutout pitching, 6-0, and Kansas City outscored Washington 10-7 in other AL action. Cleveland and Detroit had the day off.

Maris and Mantle homered in the fourth and the Yankees made it 3-2 against loser Jack Kralick in the seventh when Elston Howard doubled and eventually scored on an error.

The Angels sprayed 18 hits and collected 13 walks against five Red Sox pitchers. Los Angeles had a pair of five-run innings, in the fourth and seventh. Winning pitcher Eli Grba got two hits and four runs batted in. The loss went to 1961 rookie of the year, Don Schwall, whose record now is 2-9.

Barber gave up eight hits and seven walks in Baltimore's shutout over the White Sox. Brooks Robinson sent the Orioles ahead with a first inning homer off Don Zanni and singled in another run in the third.

Manny Jimenez, the AL's top batter, teamed with the recently-acquired Billy Consolo to pace the Athletics in the hitting match at Washington. Jimenez increased his average to .351 with a double and two singles, while Consolo had three hits. All told, Kansas City collected 18 hits. The Senators had 13 in losing their fourth in a row. Jerry Walker was the winning pitcher and Don Rudolph the loser.

Hawkins Leads Western By 1

Arnie Fails With Putter; Jack 2 Back

CHICAGO (AP)—Arnold Palmer's putter was sour, U.S. Open champion Jack Nicklaus was two strokes off the pace and the $50,000 Western Open golf tournament entered today's second round plainly anybody's party.

The one-stroke leader after Medinah Country Club's "Big Bear" No. 3 course Thursday shook up golf's top players was Fred Hawkins who moved ahead with a 3-under-par 68.

Hawkins, whose only PGA triumph in 16 years on the cash-and-carry trail was a 1956 victory in the Oklahoma City Open, was one of only six players among 135 starters to crack Medinah's par 71.

A stroke behind Hawkins, 38, from El Paso, Tex., was a trio of 69 shooters—Jack Cupit, Charles Sifford and Paul Harney — while Nicklaus and Moon Mullins were the only other sub-par shooters with 70's.

Palmer, who labored on the putting practice green hours after he turned in a 73 in a horrible finish, seemed in a daze over his failure on the greens dating from the U.S. Open two weeks ago. Palmer bogeyed the par three 17th and doubled-bogeyed the par four 18th.

"I putted worse here than at Oakmont—I can't even get near the cup anymore," said Palmer, a three-stroke victim in the National Open playoff with Nicklaus. "It's awfully frustrating. I'd rather have shot an 80 than the way I played the first round here."

Walker Hurls 3-Hit Victory

Len Walker hurled Golden Star to its first victory of the second half with a three hit, 12-0 shutout of Woodbine Thursday in the Pony League.

He received heavy support from his teammates who banged out 11 hits, including an inside the park home run by Dave Gamble. Flasco, Talbott, Dalissio and Gamble collected two hits each for the winners.

Golden Star's big inning came in the second when the Dairymen sent seven runs across the plate.

The fine performance came in Lawrenceville's 10-0 victory over Newell. Wright fanned 17 batters.

It was a pitcher's night all the way around. Allison hurled Georgetown to a 9-1 win over Hanover and only gave up two hits while striking out 16.

At Hookstown, John Wright hurled a three-hitter as Hookstown downed Frankfort Springs, 6-3.

The Denver Broncos will open the American Football League season with a home game against the San Diego Chargers on Sept. 7.

Bill Laughlin Bows Out . . .

A brilliant career in basketball as a player and then later as a coach ended this week when Bill Laughlin, who learned the game at East Liverpool High, stepped down as head coach at Washington, Pa.

His resignation completed a coaching career at Wash High spanning 16 years. In those 16 years, Laughlin established himself as a coaching genius in the tough WPIAL, where several records made by his teams continue to stand the test of time.

He returned to Washington in 1946, the same town where he had been a college standout at Washington & Jefferson. Before that Laughlin was one of East Liverpool High's all-time cage stars.

He coached at East Liverpool for five seasons, from 1938-1943, showing only one losing campaign.

Around the WPIAL, Bill must stand close to the top in view of his records at Washington.

In 16 years his squads won 262 games and lost only 94.

For 10 consecutive seasons his teams were section champions and he gained the WPIAL finals twice, but never won it.

A record that still remains a Class A mark in the WPIAL shows Washington High, during that period of 10 successive titles, winning 74 consecutive section games. The long streak started late in the 1948-49 season and didn't end until January of 1956.

Bill also has the distinction of only having one losing season in the Pennsylvania city.

While he has given up his coaching duties, Bill will remain as a teacher at the high school. His successor to the coaching job is Herbert Johnson, who was Laughlin's assistant at Wash High from 1956.

Ashcroft Works Out With Mets . . .

"HOW'S it feel to wear a major league uniform?" Rich Ashcroft was asked. "Pretty good; it feels awfully nice," he replied.

Ashcroft, the former South Side star who packs quite a wallop with a baseball bat, worked out Tuesday and Wednesday with the New York Mets at Forbes Field.

The Mets must have liked what they saw since they informed Ashcroft that he might be given another tryout at New York when the club returns from the West Coast.

Ashcroft also chatted quite awhile with Casey Stengel. "I got quite a thrill talking to him," Rich said.

The first sacker, who is drawing the attention of major league scouts, turned down an offer Wednesday from the Cleveland Indians. Cleveland wanted to sign Rich for a substantial bonus. We can't blame him for waiting, maybe something better will come along.

Meanwhile, he will continue play for the J & L Steel Co. team and the local East Liverpool Merchants.

RICH ASHCROFT

Burbick Paced Navy . . .

CRAIG BURBICK

CRAIG BURBICK is home from the Naval Academy and we'll bet 10-to-1 that he brought his golf clubs with him.

The clubs were used very well on opponents of the Navy golf team this past season, where the former Potter golf star played as No. 1 man most of the time.

He defeated seven of 12 opponents in leading the Navy golfers to a respectable 8-4 record. That included a victory over Army.

Craig just missed by a stroke of qualifying for the NCAA finals at Duke University two weeks ago, but before that showed some outstanding rounds of golf for the Navy squad.

In the Eastern College Athletic Conference's fall tourney last October at Farmingdale, N. Y., he fired a 77 to tie for individual low on the Navy squad and led his team to the runnerup spot behind Syracuse.

Navy golf coach Bob Williams rates Burbick as one of the outstanding golfers to perform at Annapolis. The East Liverpool lad still has two more years of competition remaining with the Midshipmen.

Minor Injury Sidelines Allen . . .

BERNIE ALLEN, who hasn't missed a game as the Minnesota Twins second baseman since a bout with the flu in late April, was sidelined Thursday at New York with a sore right shoulder.

Allen was taken out of the game Wednesday afternoon after six innings with the injury and didn't play yesterday. He is expected to be back in the lineup tonight when the Twins visit Washington.

The East Liverpool lad is maintaining a batting average around the .250 mark.

Montgomery Whiffs 15, Nears Little Loop Mark

Bill Montgomery, an 11-year-old righthander, sent Little League officials looking through the record books after fanning 15 batters in pitching Golden Star to a 17-2 win over Veteran Plate Glass Thursday.

Beside the 15 strikeouts, Montgomery had three assists as he figured in all of the 18 putouts that go with a six-inning Little League game. League officials are not certain whether or not the 15 strikeouts becomes a record but Montgomery turned in a baseball oddity by taking part in all of the 18 putouts with his three assists.

He gave up three hits to Veteran Plate Glass batters.

The American Division of the Little League race tightened up Thursday when the Travelers Hotel nine upset league-leading Milliron's, 10-6, and second place Golden Star moved into a near tie.

The season is in its final days and Milliron's show a 5-2 mark while Golden Star holds a 6-3 record. Tonight Milliron's meet Veteran Plate Glass.

Bob Sims pounded out a triple and two singles to lead Travelers' 11-hit attack. The hotel nine trailed 6-5 going into the last of the sixth but came up with five big runs.

Mike Caruso belted a double and three singles and Rick Talbott collected three safeties for Milliron's.

Golden Star stayed in the race by taking advantage of 14 Veteran Plate Glass errors. Montgomery, the winning pitcher, also collected two hits along with his teammate Cunningham. Bob Bickar homered for the losers.

Burbick's posted a 15-10 victory over McBurney's which started next year's outfit. Pat Clutter banged out two hits and Berhar doubled for the winners.

Yanks Whip Twins, Jump Into Second

M & M Boys Homer; LA Routs Bosox

By JIM HACKLEMAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

When it comes to cutting the bad guys off at the pass, the New York Yankees call on Marshall (The Sheriff) Bridges, one of the fastest guns in the American League.

He halted another uprising Thursday as the Yankees beat Minnesota 4-2 and leap-frogged into second place. The left-handed fireballer came in with the bases filled and two runs across in the eighth inning, fanned Don Mincher for the third out, then held the Twins in the ninth.

It was the 22nd appearance of the season for Bridges, 31, a short-stint specialist who has been a valuable replacement for the injured southpaw relief star, Luis Arroyo. Bridges' latest performance saved a victory for Bill Stafford, who was supported by homer help from Roger Maris and Mickey Mantle.

By winning, the Yankees took over the runnerup spot in a virtual deadlock with Minnesota and Los Angeles—all 1½ games behind Cleveland. New York has a three-percentage-point edge on the Angels, who in turn are three points ahead of the Twins.

The Angels bombed Boston 19-7, Baltimore completed a three-game sweep of Chicago on Steve Barber's shutout pitching, 6-0, and Kansas City outscored Washington 10-7 in other AL action. Cleveland and Detroit had the day off.

Maris and Mantle homered in the fourth and the Yankees made it 3-2 against loser Jack Kralick in the seventh when Elston Howard doubled and eventually scored on an error.

The Angels sprayed 18 hits and collected 13 walks against five Red Sox pitchers. Los Angeles had a pair of five-run innings, in the fourth and seventh. Winning pitcher Eli Grba got two hits and four runs batted in. The loss went to 1961 rookie of the year, Don Schwall, whose record now is 2-9.

Barber gave up eight hits and seven walks in Baltimore's shutout over the White Sox. Brooks Robinson sent the Orioles ahead with a first inning homer off Don Zanni and singled in another run in the third.

Manny Jimenez, the AL's top batter, teamed with the recently-acquired Billy Consolo to pace the Athletics in the hitting match at Washington. Jimenez increased his average to .351 with a double and two singles, while Consolo had three hits. All told, Kansas City collected 18 hits. The Senators had 13 in losing their fourth in a row. Jerry Walker was the winning pitcher and Don Rudolph the loser.

Phillies Trip Giants, Help Dodgers Regain First Place

Demeter's 2 HR's Put Frisco Down

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

The 3,000-mile trip from Los Angeles to Philadelphia has put Don Demeter on the road to success. And, at the moment, the Dodgers couldn't be happier over the long ride that changed the promising outfielder from an expendable to an untouchable.

The 27-year-old right-handed swinger gave his former Dodger mates an assist Thursday, powering two homers as the Phillies whipped San Francisco 7-2 and gave Los Angeles an opportunity to regain first place in the National League.

It took the Dodgers 13 innings and 4 hours and 9 minutes to grab the chance, finally subduing the stubborn New York Mets 5-4 when Frank Howard doubled Jim Gilliam home with the winning run. That gave the Dodgers a half-game edge over the runner-up Giants.

The Dodgers sent Demeter to Philadelphia last year for pitcher Dick Farrell and infielder Joe Koppe—both no longer with the Dodgers. Demeter, meanwhile, has become the Phils' top power producer.

He got the Phils started against the Giants with a second inning homer, then hit a two-run shot in the seventh that snapped a 2-2 tie and ended San Francisco's five-game victory string.

Besides the games involving the leaders. only one other was scheduled in the NL. The Chicago Cubs knocked off fourth-place St. Louis 7-2.

Bob Wine and Clay Dalrymple also homered for the Phils. Jim Owens started for the Phillies, but left in the second when a double by Orlando Cepeda, Felipe Alou's bunt single, a walk, Jim Davenport's ground out and Jose Pagan's infield single scored the Giants' runs. Rookie Billy Smith (1-1) took over and allowed only six hits the rest of the way. Juan Marichal (11-5) was the loser.

The winner came across for the Dodgers when Gilliam opened with a walk off Ken MacKenzie (2-3), moved to second as Willie Davis grounded out and raced home on Howard's hit. That gave the victory to Ed Roebuck (5-0), who allowed the Mets only two hits for 5 1-3 innings. The Dodgers had tied it in the eighth on Maury Wills' triple and a single by Gilliam after the New Yorkers had pulled ahead in the top of the inning when Gene Woodling scored one run with a sacrifice fly and pinch hitter Rod Kanehl knocked in two with a bases-loaded single.

Cal Koonce (6-2), a 21-year-old rookie, scattered 10 St. Louis hits. A first inning run-producing triple by Billy Williams and Ernie Banks' two-run double in the third put it away early against the Cardinals and Bob Gibson (9-6).

Athletic Head Blasts Scouts

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP) — The faculty athletic moderator of the University of Santa Clara, a baseball powerhouse which has lost one star to the majors and may soon lose another, blasted "ruthless, persistent" big league scouts today in a letter to Commissioner Ford Frick.

The letter from the Rev. James E. Sweeters, appearing in today's San Jose Mercury, attacked men who "promise the almighty dollar, glory, security, the moon" and who "are willing and eager to do anything to have college students sign on the dotted line."

Father Sweeters obviously was angered by Houston's recent signing of shortstop Ernie Fazio for a reported $100,000. Fazio had another year of eligibility for the Broncos, who finished second in the recent NCAA College World Series.

Santa Clara also is threatened with the loss of sophomore right-handed pitcher Bob Garibaldi, called the nation's most sought-after college ball player.

Father Sweeters' letter to Frick read in part:

"The scouts, for the most part, are ruthless, persistent competitors whose conversation is equally divided between sweet talk and small talk which is in the final analysis nothing more than double talk.

"They badger the boys, pester them, upset their home life, their emotional stability, their families; and their trade mark is pressure, pressure, pressure."

East Vs. West At Buffalo

Grid Season Opens Early, All-America Tilt Tonight

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Football in June? That's right. Tonight is the night of the second All-America game between the stars of the East and West at War Memorial Stadium.

About 22,000 fans are expected to turn out to see the pro-bound collegians of '61 do their stuff. All but two of the 61 players are signed to professional contracts. Twenty-eight will play in the National Football League, 18 in the American League and 12 in Canada. The other two are Greg Mather of Navy and Al Rushatz of Army, who will be otherwise occupied.

The proceedings will be carried on network (NBC) television with the kickoff slated for 9:30 p.m. (EDT), with the Buffalo area blacked out. A hot, humid night is forecast.

Many of the top college coaches and most of the American Football League brass has turned out for the game, which is co-sponsored by: The American Football Coaches Association, the Buffalo Evening News and the Buffalo Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Coach Woody Hayes (Ohio State) has an explosive backfield on his Eastern team, with Roman Gabriel of North Carolina State, 6-foot-4, 228-pound quarterback at the controls. Ernie Davis, flashy Syracuse back and Heisman Trophy winner and Notre Dame's Angelo Dabiero will be the halfbacks with Ohio State's Bob Ferguson, 6-foot, 220 pounds at fullback.

The Western team, with Murray Warmath (Minnesota) as the head coach, will present a solid line, anchored by the two huge Utah State tackles, 6-5, 275-pound Merlin Olsen and 6-5 250-pound Bud Miller.

Sandy Stephens, Warmath's great quarterback at Minnesota, who is going to play his pro ball in Canada, will start for the West. Jim Saxton of Texas and Bobby Lee Thompson of Arizona will be at the halfbacks. Art Perkins of North Texas State will be the fullback.

The teams will play college rules, 1962 version, with two wild cards substitutes permitted after each play. Although some players will double up on offense and defense, especially the West squad, the East will try to play a separate defensive unit if possible.

Mickey Cochrane Funeral Set Saturday At Detroit

DETROIT (AP)—Only a handful of mourners will watch the burial Saturday in Lake Forest, Ill., of Gordon Stanley Cochrane, who Thursday lost a mortal struggle with a blood disease.

But it is in Detroit, in the hearts of thousands of baseball fans, that the funeral already is under way. Black Mike is dead.

Black Mike, of the Baseball Hall of Fame. Mickey Cochrane.

Black Mike, bouncing behind the plate, his hands cupped to his mouth, taunting and tugging his Tiger teammates to a pennant and a World Series victory.

If Detroit is gloomy today because of his death, it was gloomier still before Cochrane brought it to life. That was 1933.

The Tigers were drifting around the second division and the team was broke. The owners went into their own pockets to buy the peppery little catcher from Connie Mack's Philadelphia A's.

The Tigers caught fire. They found themselves playing the St. Louis Cardinals in the 1934 World Series after capturing their first pennant in 25 years. But Pepper Martin led the Cards to victory.

The next year the Tigers took the series from the Chicago Cubs. Mickey scored from second on Goose Goslin's single to end the series.

He thrived as the city's hero. Tickertape parades honored him.

In 1937 he was felled by a thrown ball which hit him on the side of the head. He was relegated to nonplaying manager. In 1938, he was fired.

He drifted from job to job until two years ago the Tigers hired him again to scout the Chicago area.

Thursday he died in a hospital room at Lake Forest.

Phillies Trip Giants, Help Dodgers Regain First Place

Demeter's 2 HR's Put Frisco Down

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

The 3,000-mile trip from Los Angeles to Philadelphia has put Don Demeter on the road to success. And, at the moment, the Dodgers couldn't be happier over the long ride that changed the promising outfielder from an expendable to an untouchable.

The 27-year-old right-handed swinger gave his former Dodger mates an assist Thursday, powering two homers as the Phillies whipped San Francisco 7-2 and gave Los Angeles an opportunity to regain first place in the National League.

It took the Dodgers 13 innings and 4 hours and 9 minutes to grab the chance, finally subduing the stubborn New York Mets 5-4 when Frank Howard doubled Jim Gilliam home with the winning run. That gave the Dodgers a half-game edge over the runner-up Giants.

The Dodgers sent Demeter to Philadelphia last year for pitcher Dick Farrell and infielder Joe Koppe—both no longer with the Dodgers. Demeter, meanwhile, has become the Phils' top power producer.

He got the Phils started against the Giants with a second inning homer, then hit a two-run shot in the seventh that snapped a 2-2 tie and ended San Francisco's five-game victory string.

Besides the games involving the leaders, only one other was scheduled in the NL. The Chicago Cubs knocked off fourth-place St. Louis 7-2.

Bob Wine and Clay Dalrymple also homered for the Phils. Jim Owens started for the Phillies, but left in the second when a double by Orlando Cepeda, Felipe Alou's bunt single, a walk, Jim Davenport's ground out and Jose Pagan's infield single scored the Giants' runs. Rookie Billy Smith (1-1) took over and allowed only six hits the rest of the way. Juan Marichal (11-5) was the loser.

The winner came across for the Dodgers when Gilliam opened with a walk off Ken MacKenzie (2-3), moved to second as Willie Davis grounded out and raced home on Howard's hit. That gave the victory to Ed Roebuck (5-0), who allowed the Mets only two hits for 5 1-3 innings. The Dodgers had tied it in the eighth on Maury Wills' triple and a single by Gilliam after the New Yorkers had pulled ahead in the top of the inning when Gene Woodling scored one run with a sacrifice fly and pinch hitter Rod Kanehl knocked in two with a bases-loaded single.

Cal Koonce (6-2), a 21-year-old rookie, scattered 10 St. Louis hits. A first inning run-producing triple by Billy Williams and Ernie Banks' two-run double in the third put it away early against the Cardinals and Bob Gibson (9-6).

Black Mike, bouncing behind the plate, his hands cupped to his mouth, taunting and tugging his Tiger teammates to a pennant and a World Series victory.

If Detroit is gloomy today because of his death, it was gloomier still before Cochrane brought it to life. That was 1933.

The Tigers were drifting around the second division and the team was broke. The owners went into their own pockets to buy the peppery little catcher from Connie Mack's Philadelphia A's.

The Tigers caught fire. They found themselves playing the St. Louis Cardinals in the 1934 World Series after capturing their first pennant in 25 years. But Pepper Martin led the Cards to victory.

The next year the Tigers took the series from the Chicago Cubs. Mickey scored from second on Goose Goslin's single to end the series.

He thrived as the city's hero. Tickertape parades honored him.

In 1937 he was felled by a thrown ball which hit him on the side of the head. He was relegated to nonplaying manager. In 1938, he was fired.

He drifted from job to job until two years ago the Tigers hired him again to scout the Chicago area.

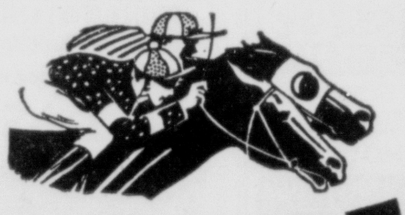

Thursday he died in a hospital room at Lake Forest.

ANSWERS YOUR PROBLEMS

Dear Ann Landers: Don't let anyone tell you that times have not changed.

My mother taught me to come home at meal time when I was visiting friends. Not so with the children in this neighborhood. They hang around the kitchen and say "Yum yum" and ask for a taste of everything.

One little fellow said to me, "Gee, I wish I lived in this house. My mother is a lousy cook and everything you make is wonderful."

I don't mind having a few youngsters once or twice a week but it's getting so that our own family never sits down to supper alone any more. What can I do without sounding like a meanie? —SURROUNDED.

(AP):-

Dear Surrounded: If you plan supper for 6 o'clock, say to the visiting youngsters (at about 5:30), "Your mother will be expecting you home soon. You'd better leave now so she won't worry." Then politely usher them to the door.

There will be no hurt feelings and after it's happened a few times the children will learn to go home without prompting.

Teen-Age Romance

Dear Ann: I'm 18 and in love with a boy who is also 18. I was graduated from high school last June. For reasons I won't go into, Boris won't be graduated until June 1963.

Last Christmas he gave me an engagement ring. When my folks saw it they asked me when we planned to be married. I told them in about six or eight years. They raised cain and made me give the ring back.

I have a good job and am saving money toward our marriage. Boris has a part-time job and he bought himself a car to run around in.

My main complaint is that he never cared much about going to church before he met me, and he drinks a little too much. With my help he is showing signs of reforming. I love him and think we could be happy. Do you?—DON'T KNOW.

Dear Little Girl: What you "Don't Know" would fill several large volumes. I'll just hit the high spots:

1. An 18-year-old girl who ties herself up for six or eight years has rocks in her head.

2 .A high school kid who "doesn't care much about church" and "drinks a little too much" sounds like bad news.

3. A girl who saves money toward marriage while her boy friend buys himself a car "to run around in" is a fool. She usually winds up supporting both herself and her husband while he blows his salary on extras.

You need this infant like a moose needs a hat rack. Forget him.

Bug Blast Off

Dear Ann: I am a woman who has been happily married for 10 years. We have two children and I can truthfully say we have had a lot less trouble in our marriage than most of the people we know.

Last week my husband did a strange thing. A girl we both know casually was involved in an auto accident. She is unmarried and used to live in this apartment building. The accident occurred near a small town about 50 miles from here. Her arm was broken and she was taken to the small town hospital.

My husband left work early and drove to see her without telling me he was going or asking me to go along. When he got home to dinner (several hours later) he told me where he had been. Naturally I blew my stack.

He hasn't gone to see her since, nor has he mentioned her name. Was I wrong to blow up? Shall I apologize? Please advise. —PUZZLEMENT.

Dear Puzzlement: By all means apologize. The paucity of evidence didn't warrant an explosion. He told you where he had been — now forget it or you may create a problem where none exists.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of The Review, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Congregation Has Farewell For Rev. Gardner, Family

The Rev. and Mrs. James Gardner and son, Gregory, were honored with a farewell party by the congregation of the Orchard Grove Community Methodist Church Tuesday night in the social rooms. About 135 attended.

They are leaving next week for Saybrook, near Ashtabula, where he will assume the pastorate of the Methodist Church.

Edward Sanford was master of ceremonies with various groups of the church participating. Mrs. Fred Neiser gave opening prayer.

The Kindergarten Class, with Mrs. Malcolm Stenger directing, sang several selections with Mrs. George Welker accompanist.

Linda Mossman read a poem, "Gregg, The Choir Boy," written by her father, Jack Mossman, and dedicated to young Gregory.

Mrs. Charles Rippeth led the Intermediate Class in a group of songs. Jim McManus presented his magic act.

Leslie Ellis, representing Boy Scout Troop 8, spoke on the pastor's association with scouting. Mrs. Lawrence Black read a humorous article "How to be the Mother of a Small Fry."

Bryan Ellis played a violin solo, "Barcarolle", with Rick Sayre accompanist. Group singing was led by the WSCS.

Joseph Cooper made the gift presentation from the congregation. Mrs. Jack Mossman, retiring president, and Mrs. Ralph Badgley, current president, gave Mrs. Gardner a gift from the WSCS. A gift from the Men's Class was given Rev. Gardner by Earl Maxwell. Mrs. Rippeth presented Gregory with a remembrance from the Sunday School.

Refreshments were served at a buffet table covered with a white linen cloth and centered with pink roses and lighted pink tapers. Mrs. William Cooper poured at the silver tea service and Mrs. Joseph Cooper, at the punch bowl.

Mrs. Robert Bickar, Mrs. Orin Powell, Mrs. Earnest Wilson, Mrs. Fred McManus, Mrs. Douglas Manning, Mrs. H. F. Banfield and Mrs. Thomas Doland comprised the social committee.

Mrs. Harry Myers, Mrs. Banfield and Mrs. Doland were in charge of the floral arrangements used on the table and throughout the room.

Mrs. Earl Maxwell and chairman and Mrs. Black, co-chairman of the pastoral relations committee, arranged the affair.

Beaver Allocated $95,087 In Taxes

The Pennsylvania State Department of Revenue announced liquid fuels tax allocation to counties for the six months ended May 31 amount to $6,777,240. Beaver County's allocation is $95,087.93.

The allocations are $217,837 below the amount returned the counties during the corresponding period a year ago.

The department explained the reduction reflects the effects of legislation adopted by the 1961 General Assembly which reduced the registration fee for buses used by mass transportation systems to $16.

The difference between the $16 fee and what would have been paid is the amount deducted from the county allocations.

The amount to be turned over to the counties is the semi-annual payment of the one-half cent a gallon of tax on gasoline and diesel fuel.

Payments are made to the counties which have met qualifications established by the Department of Highways for the expenditure of these funds.

5 Aluminum Firms, USW Sign Pacts

NEW YORK (AP) — The United Steelworkers of America announced Thursday new two-year agreements with five major aluminum companies covering 20,000 union members. The agreements, effective Aug. 1, do not provide for any wage increase.

Union President David J. McDonald said the agreements were reached "without government intervention or pressure from any outside source."

They provide for improvements in vacations and pensions and supplemental unemployment benefits.

A new supplemental vacation plan could provide as much as a week's additional time off a year for every employe, union sources said.

The agreements were reached with the Aluminum Co. of America, Reynolds Metals Co., Kaiser Aluminum Corp., Olin-Mathieson Chemical Corp., and Ormet Inc.

The pacts also call for continuing a present 23-cent an hour cost-of-living allowance.

The agreements were reached more than a month before the expiration of present contracts. This is the earliest this has been accomplished in 25 years of negotiations with the union, McDonald and Harrison said.

The most rapid growth in a child comes during the first year.

Olivia DeHaviland Relaxes With Yoga

Olivia de Havilland seems to have discovered the fountain of youth — Yoga. It was 24 years ago when I first interviewed this movie star who had just turned voting age. Well, it's great to find out that a quarter of a century, even when added to the twenties, is too little time in which to grow old and lose one's looks and sparkle.

Ida Jean Kain

Miss de Havilland is one actress who is actually enthusiastic about birthdays. She credits this mature approach to age to living in France and being married to a Frenchman. "In France women embrace every age as it comes along and the mature woman really comes into her own. It takes experience to grow and you cannot have experience without having years," she added frankly.

—:—

IT'S ALWAYS interesting to interview a star again after some years have elapsed. This occasion was a reception given by the American Newspaper Women's Club in Washington, D.C. honoring Miss de Havilland and members of the Company of the Shakespeare Summer Festival.

This actress, now in her fascinating forties, is fresh, lovely and amazingly relaxed. I decided to find the secret.

Well, it's Yoga. By the way, Yoga is not something to eat... it's a system of exercise. At the time she became Madame Pierre Galante, Yoga was all the rage in Paris.

Being the sort of person who does everything wholeheartedly, Miss de Havilland took lessons in Yoga several times a week for a year. She now does Yoga exercises for 5 to 7 minutes daily, and on matinee days she does Yoga exercises for three sessions, including standing on her head!

Her small daughter, Gisele, explains to visitors that Americans are people who stand on their heads!

Yoga is a system of physical and mental relaxing exercises. Acting is exhausting and writing is hard, tension building work, but Miss de Havilland manages to do both, with an unfurrowed brow. Her new book "Every Frenchman Has One" is just off the press. "One what?" we asked. "That's in Chapter Three..."

Yoga improves circulation and helps to develop nervous and muscular well-being. It isn't something you can get in one easy lesson, but for an introduction to the effects, try stretching to relax.

—:—

LIE DOWN on the floor and s-t-r-e-t-c-h like a cat, while breathing rhythmically. Stretching is a circulation rouser, and a tension releaser. Stretch and stretch and stretch . . . then let go, feeling a great release.

Miss de Havilland is a forthright, delightful person. It was a joy to meet her again. May she soon make another movie!

Bringing Up A Family

By GARRY C. MEYERS

Parents Frightened By Oft-Used Term

Yesterday we observed that hundreds of teachers taking summer courses will carry home with them certain technical terms like "mental block", which they may bandy about among their colleagues next fall, and when in conference with the parent about her child. Some other teachers picked up other words in earlier summers or from their supervisors or professional journals and books. The human frailty prompting such exhibitions of alleged (often empty) scholarship is the urge to feel superior. The less familiar the meaning of such words to the parent hearing them, the more overawed this parent is.

DURING THE PAST year or so a good many parents worried over the child lagging at school learning have reported that the teacher or some other school official says this child has a "mental block". To the parent, the words sound ominous. Indeed, a few want to know if it is some incurable disease.

To the psychiatrist who is a specialist in mental and emotional disturbances in children, a mental or emotional block means that some special emotional disturbance or a group of them related to fears, worries, anxieties and the like hamper the child in his school learning of reading, arithmetic or other subjects.

Now and then the psychiatrist correctly diagnoses this child's trouble and helps him escape from these blockings, resulting in his marked success at book learning. But these cases take considerable time and there are only a few such specialists available.

OF COURSE, WE don't hear of the children diagnosed by the specialist as having a mental block who don't show marked improvement at school learning after treatment.

Indeed, the child so treated still may have big arrears in one or more subjects to make up. Usually the problem still remains to find ways to help this lagging child make up these arrears.

But heed this warning:

Only the psychiatric specialist is qualified to diagnose the child as having a mental or emotional block. When the teacher on her own tells the parent her child, inattentive or lagging at school, must have a mental block, she can do great harm.

I wish no teacher would assume such responsibility. When she does, she and the parent may give up their common-sense efforts to find ways to understand this child better and to win his co-operation and effort, for instance, toward learning to read, spell or cipher better.

"WHAT'S THE USE when he has a mental block?"

It's conceivable that every child or every adult, including you and me, has mental or emotional blocking at times though not great enough, perhaps, to need a psychiatric specialist for diagnosis or treatment.

The trouble is that such terms take on in the minds of most lay persons a kind of mysterious magic. Wise teachers and parents would do well, as a rule, to avoid them.

My bulletins, "Parents Can Help Child Succeed at School" and "Home Helps in Reading, Spelling and Arithmetic," may be had by sending a self-addressed stamped envelope to me in care of The Review.

Coffee once was regarded in Europe simply as a remedy for colds, hysteria and toothache.

Olivia DeHaviland Relaxes With Yoga

Olivia de Havilland seems to have discovered the fountain of youth — Yoga. It was 24 years ago when I first interviewed this movie star who had just turned voting age. Well, it's great to find out that a quarter of a century, even when added to the twenties, is too little time in which to grow old and lose one's looks and sparkle.

Ida Jean Kain

Miss de Havilland is one actress who is actually enthusiastic about birthdays. She credits this mature approach to age to living in France and being married to a Frenchman. "In France women embrace every age as it comes along and the mature woman really comes into her own. It takes experience to grow and you cannot have experience without having years," she added frankly.

—:—

IT'S ALWAYS interesting to interview a star again after some years have elapsed. This occasion was a reception given by the American Newspaper Women's Club in Washington, D.C. honoring Miss de Havilland and members of the Company of the Shakespeare Summer Festival.

This actress, now in her fascinating forties, is fresh, lovely and amazingly relaxed. I decided to find the secret.

Well, it's Yoga. By the way, Yoga is not something to eat... it's a system of exercise. At the time she became Madame Pierre Galante, Yoga was all the rage in Paris.

Being the sort of person who does everything wholeheartedly, Miss de Havilland took lessons in Yoga several times a week for a year. She now does Yoga exercises for 5 to 7 minutes daily, and on matinee days she does Yoga exercises for three sessions, including standing on her head!

Her small daughter, Gisele, explains to visitors that Americans are people who stand on their heads!

Yoga is a system of physical and mental relaxing exercises. Acting is exhausting and writing is hard, tension building work, but Miss de Havilland manages to do both, with an unfurrowed brow. Her new book "Every Frenchman Has One" is just off the press. "One what?" we asked. "That's in Chapter Three..."

Yoga improves circulation and helps to develop nervous and muscular well-being. It isn't something you can get in one easy lesson, but for an introduction to the effects, try stretching to relax.

—:—

LIE DOWN on the floor and s-t-r-e-t-c-h like a cat, while breathing rhythmically. Stretching is a circulation rouser, and a tension releaser. Stretch and stretch and stretch . . . then let go, feeling a great release.

Miss de Havilland is a forthright, delightful person. It was a joy to meet her again. May she soon make another movie!

Send a stamped, self-addressed long envelope for leaflet "Wake Up And Stretch. Address your request to Ida Jean Kain, in care of The Review. Post card requests cannot be answered.

Bringing Up A Family

By GARRY C. MEYERS

Parents Frightened By Oft-Used Term

Yesterday we observed that hundreds of teachers taking summer courses will carry home with them certain technical terms like "mental block", which they may bandy about among their colleagues next fall, and when in conference with the parent about her child. Some other teachers picked up other words in earlier summers or from their supervisors or professional journals and books. The human frailty prompting such exhibitions of alleged (often empty) scholarship is the urge to feel superior. The less familiar the meaning of such words to the parent hearing them, the more overawed this parent is.

DURING THE PAST year or so a good many parents worried over the child lagging at school learning have reported that the teacher or some other school official says this child has a "mental block". To the parent, the words sound ominous. Indeed, a few want to know if it is some incurable disease.

To the psychiatrist who is a specialist in mental and emotional disturbances in children, a mental or emotional block means that some special emotional disturbance or a group of them related to fears, worries, anxieties and the like hamper the child in his school learning of reading, arithmetic or other subjects.

Now and then the psychiatrist correctly diagnoses this child's trouble and helps him escape from these blockings, resulting in his marked success at book learning. But these cases take considerable time and there are only a few such specialists available.

OF COURSE, WE don't hear of the children diagnosed by the specialist as having a mental block who don't show marked improvement at school learning after treatment.

Indeed, the child so treated still may have big arrears in one or more subjects to make up. Usually the problem still remains to find ways to help this lagging child make up these arrears.

But heed this warning:

Only the psychiatric specialist is qualified to diagnose the child as having a mental or emotional block. When the teacher on her own tells the parent her child, inattentive or lagging at school, must have a mental block, she can do great harm.

I wish no teacher would assume such responsibility. When she does, she and the parent may give up their common-sense efforts to find ways to understand this child better and to win his co-operation and effort, for instance, toward learning to read, spell or cipher better.

"WHAT'S THE USE when he has a mental block?"

It's conceivable that every child or every adult, including you and me, has mental or emotional blocking at times though not great enough, perhaps, to need a psychiatric specialist for diagnosis or treatment.

The trouble is that such terms take on in the minds of most lay persons a kind of mysterious magic. Wise teachers and parents would do well, as a rule, to avoid them.

My bulletins, "Parents Can Help Child Succeed at School" and "Home Helps in Reading, Spelling and Arithmetic," may be had by sending a self-addressed stamped envelope to me in care of The Review.

Coffee once was regarded in Europe simply as a remedy for colds, hysteria and toothache.

Junior Editors Quiz on AUTOMOBILES

QUESTION: When and where was the first auto made?

★ ★ ★

ANSWER: One ancestor of the modern car was a contraption built by the Jesuit missionary Ferdinand Verbiest, in 1678. In 1767, the Frenchman N. J. Cugnot constructed a full-sized steam car which dashed along the roads at two miles an hour. The English built improved steam cars, but they were handicapped by a law that a man had to run ahead of them, waving a flag. The first American motor vehicle was a combination steam wagon and flatboat designed in 1805 by Oliver Evans. This led to the development of the famous Stanley Steamers. Then came the electric car, first built by Davenport in 1836 and popular by 1900. The first gas cars were built in France by Lenoir in 1863 and gas car design was improved in Germany by Daimler and Benz. In the United States, the first successful gasoline car was constructed by J. Frank Duryea in 1893. By 1896, Henry Ford had operated his first car, and in 1909 he invented the modern assembly line.

★ ★ ★

FOR YOU TO DO: The story of old cars is fascinating and so is the building up of a collection of pictures and models. See if you can fill out our brief sketch by pasting pictures in a scrap book. Be sure to note the dates.

Hints from Heloise

— By Heloise Cruse —

Dear Heloise: I have a few discoveries to pass on from my own experience. Ballpoint pen stains on the skin or surfaces can be removed by rubbing stains with greasy or oily solutions. I took marks off my skin (where a baby had made them) with cold cream. They came right off! I then tried the cold cream on a table top that was painted and the ink marks there also came off.

About those nice new plastic containers from the supermarkets that have the name of the articles painted on them: Fingernail polish remover will take all the writing off.

I got right up and grabbed a piece of cotton and dipped it in fingernail polish remover. . . by golly. . . it took all the printing off my plastic bottle! It actually works.

The main complaint was that the printing was hard to remove from these bottles. Now we have an answer. Caution: Be sure you don't have a fresh manicure. . . the soaked cotton also will take your polish off!

HELOISE

Flowers Refreshed

DEAR HELOISE: For the wives who have paper, plastic or wax flowers in their homes—if you grow tired of the color, or the flowers have faded and gotten dirty, here's an idea. I wash mine and place them on the kitchen window sill to dry.

Then I use a bottle of old fingernail polish (sometimes pink and sometimes bright red) and just paint the flowers again. I find that the polish withstands many washings, sunlight and rain. . . just in case you are like me and put the "flowers" in your flower beds sometimes. Yes, I do this.

FREDA H.

Shelved

DEAR HELOISE: Sometimes I wash more than one sweater the same day and I find that spreading them out for the final drying takes up quite a bit of room.

So to save space, I put one sweater on each shelf of my kitchen wagon and pust push it out of the way until the drying is complete.

GERTRUDE THOMAS

Plastic Patched

DEAR HELOISE: I have plaster walls and have a few small holes in them. Will you tell me what I can use to fill the holes up with?

HOLY

I use plaster of paris that I got at my drugstore for less than 35 cents. Mix it with water and fill the hole if it is big. Let dry and then paint whatever color your walls are.

Some interior decorators write that when they move pictures from one section of a wall to another, they use toothpaste! White of course. This takes longer to dry. But it does work. I have patched all of my picture holes this way.

HELOISE

Shoe Sparkle

DEAR HELOISE: I have four boys and a husband. Scuffed shoes seem to be a problem. We cannot afford commercial shoeshine clothes.

One day I decided to use an old discarded nylon stocking to shine shoes with. It's unbelievable—it shines with super excellence.

One thing about it is that all wives have stockings with runners and they can be discarded when full of shoe polish. We can also afford a different stocking for each color of shoe polish now. Brown, black, cordovan and even red (my daughter's).

Just a thought that you might pass on.

School Board To Air Need Of Extra Levy

The question of an additional operating levy for city schools probably will be discussed when the Board of Education meets Monday night at 7:30.

The possibility of asking for additional funds at the November general election was discussed briefly at the meeting June 18 when the board voted unanimously to ask renewal of a 3-mill operating levy for 10 years.

The renewal already has been certified to the County Election Board.

The Citizens Committee for Better Schools recommended to the board that it seek an additional 2 mills to be used exclusively to grant salary increases to the 217 professional employes and 52 non-certified personnel.

The committee also recommended the board prepare plans for construction of an entire new high school plant on a new site, but no formal discussions have been held as yet.

The board also will consider bids on converting Taft School from coal to gas heat. Some faculty appointments also will be made.

David Jordan received the wolf badge and gold arrow; Greg Gardner, denner stripe; Curtis Martin, bobcat badge; Terry Hoyt, one-year pin, and Garry Lutton, two-year pin.

Mrs. Mary Brenneman's Den 3 gave a skit on the theme, "Noah's Ark", and participants included David Jordan, Curtis Martis Martin and Billy Brenneman.

Den 2, with Mrs. Gerry Lutton, den mother, led group singing.

Mrs. Martha Badgley of Den 6 was in charge of the games and prizes went to Billy Brenneman, David Jordan, Herb Malone, Bill Hoyt and Frank Chronister.

Mrs. Audrey Hoyt supervised the mothers' softball throw and Mrs. Helen Bourne of Den 8 was winner. The men held a special meeting meanwhile.

The meeting closed with the cubmaster and the boys forming a living circle. A wiener roast followed.

A father and son day was planned for Sunday. The boys and fathers will meet at the church at 2 p. m.-then tour the Lisbon Highway Patrol Post and the Fort Tuscarawas Museum at Guilford Lake.

Hargraves Conducts Panel Of State Group

High School Principal George Hargraves served as chairman of a discussion group at the annual meeting of the Ohio High School Principals Association which ended today in Columbus.

Also attending the session was Thomas H. Dixon, principal of Westgate School.

Hargraves chaired the discussion on developing more flexible schedules in secondary schools and also submitted a report on professional standards for secondary school principals at the meeting on the Ohio State University campus.

The pineapple is not really a single fruit, but a consolidation of many small fruits into one pulpy combination, much like a mulberry. Each eye is the product of a single blossom.

Hints from Heloise

— By Heloise Cruse —

Dear Heloise: I have a few discoveries to pass on from my own experience. Ballpoint pen stains on the skin or surfaces can be removed by rubbing stains with greasy or oily solutions. I took marks off my skin (where a baby had made them) with cold cream. They came right off! I then tried the cold cream on a table top that was painted and the ink marks there also came off.

About those nice new plastic containers from the supermarkets that have the name of the articles painted on them: Fingernail polish remover will take all the writing off.

I got right up and grabbed a piece of cotton and dipped it in fingernail polish remover. . . by golly. . . it took all the printing off my plastic bottle! It actually works.

The main complaint was that the printing was hard to remove from these bottles. Now we have an answer. Caution: Be sure you don't have a fresh manicure. . . the soaked cotton also will take your polish off!

HELOISE

Flowers Refreshed

DEAR HELOISE: For the wives who have paper, plastic or wax flowers in their homes—if you grow tired of the color, or the flowers have faded and gotten dirty, here's an idea. I wash mine and place them on the kitchen window sill to dry.

Then I use a bottle of old fingernail polish (sometimes pink and sometimes bright red) and just paint the flowers again. I find that the polish withstands many washings, sunlight and rain. . . just in case you are like me and put the "flowers" in your flower beds sometimes. Yes, I do this.

FREDA H.

Shelved

DEAR HELOISE: Sometimes I wash more than one sweater the same day and I find that spreading them out for the final drying takes up quite a bit of room.

So to save space, I put one sweater on each shelf of my kitchen wagon and pust push it out of the way until the drying is complete.

GERTRUDE THOMAS

Plastic Patched

DEAR HELOISE: I have plaster walls and have a few small holes in them. Will you tell me what I can use to fill the holes up with?

I use plaster of paris that I got at my drugstore for less than 35 cents. Mix it with water and fill the hole if it is big. Let dry and then paint whatever color your walls are.

Some interior decorators write that when they move pictures from one section of a wall to another, they use toothpaste! White of course. This takes longer to dry. But it does work. I have patched all of my picture holes this way.

HELOISE

Shoe Sparkle

DEAR HELOISE: I have four boys and a husband. Scuffed shoes seem to be a problem. We cannot afford commercial shoeshine clothes.

One day I decided to use an old discarded nylon stocking to shine shoes with. It's unbelievable—it shines with super excellence.

One thing about it is that all wives have stockings with runners and they can be discarded when full of shoe polish. We can also afford a different stocking for each color of shoe polish now. Brown, black, cordovan and even red (my daughter's).

Just a thought that you might pass on.

School Board To Air Need Of Extra Levy

The question of an additional operating levy for city schools probably will be discussed when the Board of Education meets Monday night at 7:30.

The possibility of asking for additional funds at the November general election was discussed briefly at the meeting June 18 when the board voted unanimously to ask renewal of a 3-mill operating levy for 10 years.

The renewal already has been certified to the County Election Board.

The Citizens Committee for Better Schools recommended to the board that it seek an additional 2 mills to be used exclusively to grant salary increases to the 217 professional employes and 52 noncertified personnel.

The committee also recommended the board prepare plans for construction of an entire new high school plant on a new site, but no formal discussions have been held as yet.

The board also will consider bids on converting Taft School from coal to gas heat. Some faculty appointments also will be made.

Hargraves Conducts Panel Of State Group

High School Principal George Hargraves served as chairman of a discussion group at the annual meeting of the Ohio High School Principals Association which ended today in Columbus.

Also attending the session was Thomas H. Dixon, principal of Westgate School.

Hargraves chaired the discussion on developing more flexible schedules in secondary schools and also submitted a report on professional standards for secondary school principals at the meeting on the Ohio State University campus.

The pineapple is not really a single fruit, but a consolidation of many small fruits into one pulpy combination, much like a mulberry. Each eye is the product of a single blossom.
